Respect the Bible
Ancient Hibernians
The Romanoffs Did It
Happy Railroad

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by the Star Company.

CONGRESSMAN BLANTON of Texas says the local District of Columbia law forbidding "teaching of disrespect for the Bible," will be made a law all over the country. That wouldn't be a bad idea, if the Supreme Court calls it constitutional.

ALL AMERICANS should respect the feelings and religions of all other Americans. No decent man would show disrespect for the Bible, the Talmud, the Koran, the learned and admirable maxims of Confucius, or any other religious work.

TO A MAJORITY of Americans the Bible is the book sacred above all others. The Constitution forbids the passing of any law showing favor to any particular religion, and, regardless of Constitutional rules, the majority would not compel respect for its own religion, or its own sacred book, without doing as much for the views and the books of the various minorities.

THE ANCIENT ORDER OF HIBERNIANS expresses "utter contempt" for the Ku Klux Klan, and demands the return of light wine and beer.

One good thing you notice in all protests against prohibition, nobody asks the return of whiskey or the saloon.

THE ANCIENT ORDER OF HIBERNIANS also praise the Jews, and declare that Hyam Solomon, a Polish Jew, was one of the financial mainstays of the American Revolution and has never had the credit due him.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Jews, UNITED, should give the Ku Klux Klan an interesting contest.

THE PARIS MATIN says the Bolsheviki government has shot Prince Golitzine, seventy-six years old, and fifteen graduates of the Imperial Alexander Academy, which, in the Czar's days, was the centre of education for young Russian aristocracy.

Golitzine once was the Czar's Prime Minister. Sixty other graduates of the imperial school have been exiled to Northern Russia, where most of them probably will die of hardship.

YOU SAY that is very horrible, and so it is.

But the Bolsheviki are only following the example set by the royal Romanoffs. What Bolshevism has done to the imperial Alexander school and to Prince Golitsine is exactly what the Romanoffs would have done to a Communist school and to its managers.

When those in power set a bad example, they are apt, some day, to suffer for it.

THE New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, once a prosperous railroad system, thoroughly gutted and impoverished by mismanagement and worse, needs more money and gets it.

Rates are increased 40 per cent. in its local business, and 20 per cent. in business between States.

That should make things more comfortable for the railroad. When you add respectively 40 and 20 per cent. to a road's net income, you help it considerably.

WOULDN'T it be pleasant for farmers if they could have some government agency, like the Interstate Commerce Commission, add 40 and 20 per cent. to their net incomes?

GENTLEMEN that pick up a living here and there in Wall Street seem to have suspected that a kind-hearted government would do something for the New Haven road. Since last January the price of its stock has gone up 50 per cent.

PEOPLE must use the New Haven road, and they must

Vanderbilt Guests in Airships

FLOCK TO NEWPORT WEDDING

Many Noted Boston People Gather for Marriage of N. Y. Heriess

Newport, R. I., July 25.—Airplanes brought some of the 200 society guests today for the wedding of Miss Muriel Vanderbilt and Frederic Cameron Church, Jr., of Boston.

By airplane, yacht, motor and train society flocked to Newport for the gala event of the Summer, and besides the 200 wedding guests, 300 more came to attend the ball which Count, and Countess Szecheny will give in honor of the bride and bridegroom.

A blue sky and a bright sun set off the stately white mansion, Beachmound, residence of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2d, the bride's mother, as the guests arrived.

Among them all there was but one topic of conversation—the romance of Muriel Vanderbilt, social, out-of-doors girl, who spurns cigarettes and intoxicants, and Freddie Church, one of Harvard's great football heroes.

The stately white residence, set in velvet smooth lawns and overlooking the shining sands of Bailey's Beach, "whereon Newport's four hundred disports at the fashionable hour of twelve each day," is a bower of fragrance and color.

Rose and blue is the bridal decorative motif chosen by Mrs. Vander-

WAITING FOR WEDDING BELLS AT NEWPORT

A very human bride and groom are revealed by this photograph of Frederic Cameron Church of Boston and Lowell and Muriel Vanderbilt, who became man and wife today at Beachmound, Newport, R. I., the villa occupied for the Summer by the girl's mother. The photograph posed for the Boston Evening American late yesterday afternoon with one of the hundred of gorgeous floral settings, set out for the ceremony on the estate shows that "perfect girl" and "Greek God" are not so extravagant praises as they may sound.

YOUTHFUL SUSPECTS QUIZZED AFTER THEY CONFESS ROBBERIES

Hudson, N. H., July 25.—Three Massachusetts youths who, the police say, have been on a tour of pillage and plunder through New Hampshire for the past week, were grilled by authorities today in connection with the slaying of Miss Helen E. Gillis, eighty-year-old spinster, and her sister, Georgianna, aged seventy-seven.

The grilling took place in the county jail at Hancock, immediately after the boys pleaded guilty in Hancock Court to robbing the railroad stations at Elmwood and South Bennington and assaulting a railroad worker at Keene, N. H.

The youths questioned are Anthony Vigbne, aged sixteen, of Grove street, Cambridge; Joseph Munsto, aged sixteen, High street, Bridgewater, and Charles Marinsky, sixteen, of Comfort street, Bridgewater.

For the time being, search for the slayers who crushed in the skulls of the aged Hudson women has been held in abeyance until the grilling of the youths is completed.

When they were arrested the

OUIMET AND HERSEY IN GOLF TITLE RACE

By BILL GRIMES

Francis D. Ouimet, the former United States open and national amateur champion, and five times winner of the Massachusetts State title, and Winthrop P. Hersey, the nineteen-year-old Princeton boy from Wellesley, are the finalists of the twenty-first annual State championship, which is being played today at the Country Club, Brookline.

In the qualifying round, Ouimet and Hersey were tied for third place with 149, two strokes back of Freddie Wright, the medalist. Francis experienced little trouble in match play, until yesterday afternoon, when he tackled Eddie Murphy. In the first round he disposed of Jimmie Lynch, 7 and 6, and then took care of R. W. (Bunny) Estabrook, 3 and 1. Yesterday morning, Fran-

U. S. PROTESTS TO BRITAIN ON RUBBER

London, July 25 (A.P.).—Alanson B. Houghton, United States ambassador to Great Britain, acting under instructions from the State Department, has presented to Foreign Secretary Chamberlain the protests of American rubber manufacturers against the scheme for restriction of raw rubber production in the British colonies.

Since the scheme is one of colonial, not imperial, legislation, Mr. Chamberlain has referred the protest to the colonial office.

It is doubtful whether the colonial office can reach a decision by August 1, as the American buyers de-

SAVES HER FOUR BABIES FROM BURNING HOUSE

Springfield, July 25.—Risking her life four times, Mrs. Frank Ferraro of Ellendale street, East Springfield, saved her four small children when they were trapped on the second story of their burning home today.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp, left on the kitchen table by Frank Ferraro, a baker, who left it burning when he went to his work.

Awakened by the explosion, Mrs. [illegible] found the kitchen a mass of flames. Four times she made trips up the smoke-filled stairs to carry her children

BOSTON SOCIETY AT CHURCH-VANDERBILT WEDDING

REHEARSING FOR BRILLIANT WEDDING OF SOCIETY'S 'PERFECT BRIDE'

NUPTIALS TODAY AT NEWPORT

blue. All New England has been ransacked for scores of blossoms ranging through the pink and blue tints. Florists' shops in Gotham, as well, have added their quota to the riot of beauty.

Outside the mansion, set about at intervals, is a rainbow effect of enormous spreading lawn umbrellas shading round tables where guests will gather to chat and sup.

Blue and gray umbrellas alternate with orange and ecru. Bright kings blues in table covers, in tent poles, in huge garden tubs holding purplish pink hydranges adds a vivid note of color.

Over all spreads a marquee, and here and there about the verandahs large Chinese lanterns of golden yellow sway in the breeze from the Atlantic.

The hour of the wedding, 4:30 this afternoon, will find gathered at Beachmound a comparatively small company of Newport's resident aristocracy, of relatives and connections in the clans of Vanderbilt, and a number of the bridegroom's relatives and friends, some two hundred in all.

The bride's gown is a beautiful Paris creation of white and silver. It was announced that she is to be given in marriage by her father, William K. Vanderbilt, 2d, and that her attendant as maid of honor is her sister, Consuelo.

Efram Zimbalist, distinguished violinist, was secured to play the wedding march and selections before and after the ceremony.

CHURCH FAMILY ARRIVE.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, parents of the bridegroom, have arrived by motor from their Lowell home and are established in a suite at the smart Muenchinger King Cottage.

Also at that fashionable hostelry are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hanchett of Lowell, and Miss Hazel Hanchett, uncle, aunt and cousin of the bridegroom. They are among the close relatives of Mr. Church coming to town for the bridal.

Mrs. Thomas Talbot Clarke of North Billerica, and Miss Helen Nesmith of Lowell, friends of the Church family, are guests at the Muenchinger King Cottage. Just nearby, at the LaForge Cottage, are Dr. Norman Ditman and Mrs. Ditman, and Miss Eva Cummock, all of Lowell.

Really, after Beachmound and its wedding preparations, the Muenchinger King Cottage may be said to be the centre of attraction. It is there that all Mr. Church's entourage is putting up, with the exception of Herman Oelrichs, who is with his mother.

BOSTON USHERS.

That hospitable roof covers Messrs. Russell Sturgis Codman, Jr., James Otis, Richard S. Humphrey, Robert A. Lancaster and Robert W. Emmons 3rd, all Bostonians, and all slated for usher roles at the wedding. Lawrence B. VanIngen, of New York, and Robert G. Payne of New York and Japan, two Gothamites in the supporting staff, are there. Also Harold S. Vanderbilt, who is an usher.

Mr. Payne came half-way round the world, in the way from Japan, to be best man for Mr. Church. Miss Vanderbilt and Mr. Church entertained most informally at dinner at the Muenchinger King Cottage in compliment to the best man and ushers.

Jollity reigned about the board. Miss Vanderbilt, the hostess, wore a summery frock of pale Nile green silk with chapeau of white and wrap of the same color. The party of five, Miss Vanderbilt and Mr. Church, Lawrence VanIngen and Robert Lancaster, ushers, and Robert Payne, best man, was enlarged as late-coming ushers joined it.

LATER ARRIVALS.

First additions were Russell Sturgis Codman, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell S. Codman of Boston and Manchester, and James Otis of Brookline, who is the son of Mrs. Herbert Foster Otis and brother of the lovely Miss Mary Otis, a bud of two Winters ago.

Next came Richard Sears Humphrey and then Robert W. Emmons, 3rd. Mr. Emmons, by the way, with Messrs. Church and VanIngen, was an usher at the Humphrey-Emmons wedding some two years ago, when Miss Marion Van Buren Emmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Emmons, of Boston and England became Mrs. Richard Humphrey.

Directly after the luncheon, principals and attendants flocked to Beachmound for a late afternoon wedding rehearsal. William Kissam Vanderbilt, 2nd, father of the bride, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt as maid of honor, the ushers and best man went through their parts in attending the prospective bride and groom.

RELAX IN SURF.

Miss Vanderbilt and Mr. Church [illegible] to their informal breakfast from Ballard's [illegible] Beach, where they had joined Newport's fashiondom for a dip in the surf. Mrs. Vanderbilt, too, taking a respite from the thousand and one duties connected with her oversight of wedding plans, was on the shining sands of Bailey's Beach.

Very modish was she, in a cool frock of white crepe, shady white hat veiled in black, and carrying one of the swagger short parasols feminine Newport adores as a costume accessory.

Mrs. Herbert Shipman, wife of Bishop Shipman, one of the officiating clergymen of today's wedding, was at Baileys. Her frock was of rose pink with matching chapeau, a tone with which the golden brown of her chow dog was striking in accord.

GATHER AT CASINO.

Over at the Casino were Larry Waterbury, Sir John and Lady Ward, George D. Widener, all registered, and J. O'Brien, Jr., and Dewees Dilworthy, who came to Newport on the yacht Huzzar. Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, Jr., of Boston, also played tennis at the Casino.

Mrs. Gardner's sister and hostess, Mrs. Dudley Davis (Alice Grosvenor), gave a dinner in compliment to some of the Vanderbilt-Church wedding guests.

Boston's contingent here also includes the Cameron Macrae Winslows, who yearly make Newport their Summer home. Miss Natalie Winslow, the elder daughter, was very attractive in wide chapeau and figured organdie, as she motored down Bellevue avenue.

In the same aristocratic and brilliant thoroughfare there were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, with the former at the wheel of their motor.

Marble House, the stately white residence of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, paternal grandmother of today's bride, is tightly closed.

Its shuttered windows and generally untenanted air make an unusual note in the gay Fifth avenue of Newport. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont will not be in town to see her granddaughter, Miss Muriel Vanderbilt, become Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, Jr.

SMOOT SEES TROUBLE IN TAX PUBLICITY

Salt Lake City, July 25. (A. P.)—Modifications of the publicity clause of the income tax law will be sought by Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, and chairman of the Senate Committee of Finance, at the next session he declared.

"I have never been able to see where any good came from making tax returns public," he said. "On the other hand I can see where unscrupulous competitors can cause a great deal of trouble if granted the privilege."

WHITE CARGO' STAR ACCUSES RADIO MAN

San Francisco, July 25.—Willard I. Ledolyt, forty-five years old, treasurer of an Eastern radio company, surrendered on a statutory warrant sworn to by Miss Edith Randolph, known also as Edith Ransom, late star of the play, "White Cargo."

Miss Randolph said that the conduct excepted to came during a party in a hotel. Ledolyt was released on $2,500 cash bail and directed to appear in police [illegible] trio were armed with long knives, whetted to razor edges, police say.

As a result of the following facts the police determined to question the boys:

The boys were reported in Hudson, N. H., and Nashua, a short distance away, last Wednesday, the day the Gillis sisters were murdered.

The boys admit that on the day preceding the murder they begged food from homes on Central street, the same street as the Gillis residence, where the sisters were slain.

In possession of the boys were found papers and letters dealing with Hudson, the contents of which the police refuse to divulge.

The boys have disclosed an intimate knowledge of affairs in Hudson.

BURIED LOOT IN WOODS.

The boys were arrested as they were leaving a thick wood near Hancock. In their confessed robbery of the Elmwood station they got $40 in cash, while at South Bennington police say they admit obtaining $100, together with other loot. This they said they buried in the woods, and it was after a visit to the hiding place that they were arrested by Sheriff William M. Hanson.

When the boys were taken before Judge Henry W. Wilson, today, they pleaded guilty to the charge of robbing the two railroad stations and attacking the railroad workers. They told the court they were simply "touring." The court, at the suggestion of the sheriff, reserved sentence, and next week the boys will be taken before the court again.

Sheriff John T. O'Dowd of Manchester, in charge of the murder investigation, came here immediately after the court proceedings and the two officers started grilling the boys.

Finger prints of the youths have been taken and these will be compared with the finger prints on the flat iron found near the body of one of the victims, and which may have been used as the death weapon.

POPULACE IS AROUSED.

The offering of rewards totalling $2,500 for the apprehension of the slayers of the sisters was scarcely needed as an incentive to hunt down the murderers, for the citizenry of the entire State is enraged over the brutality of the crime and search for the slayers is general.

Bloodhounds and trained police dogs are to be used by the authorities in an effort to track down the slayers of the sisters, it was announced today. A trained police dog has been ordered and should the work of this animal give any promise of success other dogs will be used. It is believed the dogs can be effectively used in picking up the scent of the slayer.

Early today police throughout New England were asked to keep a sharp lookout for a man who is hunted as another suspect. The report of the medical examiners indicates a man of his type committed the brutal crime.

Demetrius Pappanikrios, escaped inmate from the State Hospital for the Insane at Concord, has practically been eliminated from the case.

So, too, have two automobilists who were near the scene of the crime at the time the women met their death. These men have been found and have convinced the police they know nothing of the slaying.

STATE HEAD LEADS HUNT.

Acting Governor Tobey, who is head of the State during the absence of Governor John G. Winant who is on a vacation, decided at a conference held in Manchester early today, to take personal charge of the hunt for the slayer.

Attorney General Jeremy R. Waldron is also in the field and will work with the acting Governor in [illegible] other State and county agencies engaged in the search for the slayer will work under the direction of these two officials.

Sheriff O'Dowd also declared today that he has found Leon French, favorite nephew of the dead women, who lived with them for years in Hudson, and that French, at the request of the sheriff [illegible] Hudson to-[illegible] and [illegible] authorities with information that may assist in locating the murderers and also to clear up the mystery.

French is the son of Mrs. Mary French, sister of the dead women. He was found working for a large mill concern in Sudbury, Mass. He told the authorities over the telephone he was not aware his aunts were murdered until informed by the authorities, who were anxious to locate him.

A four-hours' search by police authorities in the home of the Gillis sisters at Central and Library streets, Hudson, where the aged pair lived alone, resulted in the finding of eight dollars in the kitchen pantry.

Bank books found in the house were scrutinized and revealed the fact that one of the accounts, carried with the Amoskeag Savings' Bank of Manchester, showed withdrawal of seventy-five dollars within the past few days.

HUNT FOR STRANGER.

With the automobilists and the escaped inmate of the hospital for the insane eliminated, the authorities have started a hunt for a suspicious looking stranger who was walking through the storm on Wednesday afternoon about 5:30, swinging a heavy club.

The man was seen by Dan Sullivan, operator of the car that runs from Nashua past the Gillis home to the Pelham road.

The man was of rough, unclean appearance, between 26 and 35 years of age. He wore an army campaign hat with a service cord on it. The man has been sought in the camps along the Merrimac river without success.

The police, as yet have not found the instrument with which the skulls of the aged sisters were crushed, and a club such as the stranger carried could have been [illegible] with a weapon. The old-[illegible] flat-iron found in the kitchen where the oldest sister's body was found, was covered with spots at first believed to be blood, but examination showed these to be rust.

MOURN PASSING OF FRED L. NELLSON

The passing of few men in Boston has ever been noted with more sincere regret than was expressed on every hand today over the sudden death of Fred L. Nellson, superintendent of Thompson's Spa, who died of a stroke of apoplexy at his Summer home at Pinedale on the Cape.

For more than two score years Mr. Nellson was connected with the late Charles S. Eaton and later with his sons in the management of the spa.

Fred Lewis Nellson was born in East Cambridge. At the time of his death his Winter home was at No. 256 School street, Watertown. He was a member of Pequossette Lodge, A. F. & A. M., St. Paul's Chapter, DeMolay Commandery, K. T., Aleppo Temple, Mystic Shrine, and Massachusetts Consistory, and other fraternal organizations.

In November, 1885, he married Miss Nellie Munsey. He had one son, Lewis Nellson, who died during the influenza epidemic.

ments of the famous Yankee Division into Boston where they detrained at the North Station and scattered to their homes.

With cheers for their own homecoming but enthusiastic praise, as well, for the vigorous training they had undergone, the National Guardsman tumbled from the Camp Devens specials, and were off to their homesectors in automobile trucks, buses and afoot.

Field artillery outfits from Allston, Brockton, New Bedford and Taunton embarked from the North Station for their Camp Devens tour of duty.

The first troops to hit Boston in the Yankee Division home-coming were the special troops, the 101st Howitzer Company and Companies C, I, K and L from Boston, Allston, Quincy, Norwood, Attleboro, Hingham and Plymouth.

The second special train brought in the 51st Infantry Brigade, including the 101st Infantry companies A, B, E, F and Service Company from Boston and Cambridge.

Following these came the 101st Engineers, headquarters company, medical detachment, Companies A, B, C, D, E, F, Companies H and M of the 101st Infantry and Company G, 192d Infantry.

sire. This is the date of the commencing of a new quarter for the fixing of restriction of rubber exports.

Prior to the presentation of this protest by Ambassador Houghton, representatives of American rubber interests had explained their attitude to Secretary of State Kellogg at Washington and to the British commercial attache there.

It is understood that Ambassador Houghton outlined to Secretary Chamberlain the extent of the rubber industry in the United States and emphasized the unemployment that might result in that industry if further restrictions of raw rubber output necessitated additional curtailment of tire manufacturing in America.

TINKHAM URGES CHECK IN DEBT REDUCTION

Will Ask Congress to Study Problem as Means to Cut Down Taxes

Washington, July 25.—Comprehensive study by Congress of the entire subject of public debt retirement, with a view to possible reduction of the speed at which bonds are now being paid and a consequently greater reduction in taxes, was urged by Representative George Holden Tinkham, Republican, of Massachusetts.

This question has aroused great interest since it became certain that another tax cut will be made at the coming session. Senator Jones, Democrat, of New Mexico, stated that $500,000,000 could be lopped off the annual tax burden, if the retirement of the public debt were retarded only a moderate extent.

FOREIGN OBLIGATIONS.

In addition to the tax reduction, Congress will also have debt funding arrangements with several European powers to approve. These agreements will increase the revenue now being devoted to debt retirement, which many think is already being carried on too rapidly.

"The question of whether or not the United States government is retiring its public debt too rapidly is developing wide discussion among economists. Particular stress is laid on the relation between debt retirement and tax reduction," said Mr. Tinkham.

"Those advocating a decrease in debt retirement contend that under the present policy this generation is required to bear too much of the cost of the war and that a larger proportion should be passed on to the next generation. In this way, it is asserted, greater relief from the present heavy taxes would be afforded.

"The less money taken from the treasury for debt retirement, the larger the surplus becomes, and consequently greater tax reduction is possible.

CONDITION IMPROVED.

"A British economist has pointed out that we will be free of war debt after twenty-five years and when that time comes, 'America will not insist on dragging tribute from Europe.'

"The Treasury Department holds the present retirement policy is vital to sound financial conditions, both public and private. But since the promulgation of this policy more than a year and a half ago economic conditions in the United States, both financial and private, have undergone a vast improvement."

From its peak of $26,596,701,648.61 on August 31, 1919, the debt was reduced to $20,516,000,000 on June 30, 1925. It was cut down last year $734,000,000. Theestimate for the current year is $484,776,130, plus any surplus at the end of the year.

5,000 MORE AMERICAN TOURISTS SAIL ABROAD

New York, July 25.—Another army of American tourists sailed for Europe today aboard eight big trans-Atlantic liners. Steamship officials estimated the departure at more than 5,000.

European touring this year has broken all records, the record departure for a single day being 10,000. John McBowman, owner of a chain of hotels, just back from abroad, said: "Americans are going to Europe, those who can afford it, because they like to drink."

10 LITTLE TOES FOR SOMEONE TO CUDDLE

Marion Frances Paul, light-haired and blue-eyed, is only 5 months' old, but she's already looking for someone to take her into their heart and home. Her Brockton parents are in financial straits and have to part with her.

BABY'S LIFE IS SAVED BY DRUG INJECTION

Baltimore, Md., July 25 (Universal)—Dr. Walter A. Cox of Franklin Square Hospital "took a chance," and today scientists hailed the result as the opening of a new discovery in obstetrics to save babies from death immediately after birth.

Today he explained how he happened to make a hypodermic injection of lobeline, "Indian tobacco," into the heart of a baby apparently dead, despite the fact that the widely used stimulant was considered extremely dangerous for babies. He said:

"The baby was born in the usual condition but we could not get it to breathing. We tried all the remedies but failed. Finally, I concluded the baby was dead. Its heart had stopped beating and there seemed to be no way to revive life.

"A sample of the lobeline had been sent to the hospital and, convinced the baby was dead, I had nothing to lose and a possible life to save. I plunged the hypodermic into the baby's heart. Immediately it started to breathe and its heart action was restored.

"Now it is thriving and just as good as any other."

HERE'S A REAL BIG BARGAIN IN BABIES

There's a big bargain in babies in store for some lucky bidder—and her name is Marion Frances Paul.

One of the youngest but mightiest visitors who has ever paid her respects at the offices of the Boston Evening American, Baby Marion came all the way in from Brockton in her mother's arms today to voice one of the strongest pleas we have ever heard.

We do not claim to be a baby linguist, but what she gave us to understand between gurglings and emphatic waves of a dimpled fist, was just this:

"Surely in this world there must be somebody who wants me. I'm very small, and I don't cry much, and all I need is three square bottles of milk a day. But I really must insist on having a new daddy and mother—and pretty quick, too —because my own father and mother have to give me up, and what is Home Without a Father and Mother?"

A FAIR QUESTION.

That's a fair question, and we're betting that little Miss Marion Frances Paul isn't going to lack very long for some warm-hearted reader to answer it.

She's just about the last word in babies, and although she owns to only five months of life in a queer world that metes out white-curtained cribs and performed talcum to some babies and market baskets and no rattles to others, she isn't complaining but just hoping—is little Marion Paul.

A year and a half ago Daddy Herman Paul and Mother Frances Paul were married, and for a while no future looked rosier and no prospects brighter. Father Paul held a comfortable job as last maker in a Brockton factory, and Mrs. Paul happy collected a pile of bonnets and bibs against the summons of Sir Stork.

MUST GIVE HER UP.

But now with Baby Marion only five months with them, "Hard Times" have dealt the Paul home a severe blow. Father Paul has lost his job and Mrs. Paul seeks to become a waitress again, as she was before her marriage. In order that the rent and milk and grocery bills may be met.

Today Mrs. Paul stated that she felt the only solution of their predicament was the adoption of Baby Marion by some good family.

"Much as I dislike to give my baby up," said Mrs. Paul, "I feel that she stands a bigger chance with another father and mother who can take care of her and raise her, as my husband and I are not able to do at present."

It's not a very large order to fill, for the right father and mother, and surely there's some one waiting just a maximum for a golden-haired, blue-eyed baby Marion as she is—for them.

SUMMER SERVICES AT ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

The Rev. Dr. Edward T. Sullivan begins his term as Summer preacher in St. Paul's Cathedral tomorrow. At the 11 o'clock service the subject of the sermon will be: "Launch Out, or the Strategy of the Attack in the Struggle for Moral Character." At the evening service, at 7:30 the subject will be: "The Evergreen Spirits, or the Secret of Serenity in the Disquietudes of Life."

At 7 o'clock will be held the sunset service on the porch of the Cathedral. This service is one of the features of the Summer Sunday evenings in Boston. It is led by a vested chorus of men and women, and trumpet. The Street Commissioners close the block to traffic while it is going on, and Tremont street is full of people singing familiar hymns.

G. O. P. LEADER BEAT HER FOR YEARS, SAYS WIFE

Springfield, July 25.—Konstanty Zbowski, 37 years old, of No. 68 Maine street, Indian Orchard, member of the Republican City Committee, was before the Domestic Relations Court on complaint of Mrs. Zbowski, who testified that he had made a practice of beating and abusing her whenever he felt like it, for the past 14 years.

A suspended sentence of two months was imposed.

LIVING COSTS JUMP 73.5 P. C. IN 12 YEARS

Washington, July 25.—The cost of living in the United States increased 73.5 per cent. from 1913 to 1925.

The figures, made public by the bureau of labor statistics of the labor department, showed that the greatest percentage of increase was in house furnishing goods, the price of which this year averaged 114.3 per cent. higher than in 1913.

SMALL SET PICKS UP EXPLORER

Bowdoin Reports Trouble in Communicating With U. S. Stations

New York, July 25.—How an English schoolboy established a clear two-way communication with the MacMillan expedition in the Arctic, is told in a special copyright dispatch to the New York Times from London.

The dispatch says:

"A young student named Goyder, at Mill Hill school, Middlesex, this morning, established a clear two-way communication with the MacMillan Arctic expedition as the ship Bowdoin, with Captain MacMillan aboard, was crossing the Arctic Circle.

"Captain MacMillan wirelessed that he had been trying unsuccessfully to get in touch with a number of stations for the purpose of sending personal messages, but found the Mill Hill school wireless the clearest of all.

GOT NEW ZEALAND.

"The first communication with the school was attempted Saturday, when the MacMillan ship at Hopedale, Labrador, was held up for propeller trouble.

"It was Goyder who was the first to obtain two-way communication by wireless between Britain and New Zealand.

"Goyder uses a simple apparatus with a wave-length of forty meters. His receives on a Reinartz circuit, the inventor of which is operating the wireless station aboard the Bowdoin.

"MacMillan told Goyder he was in communication with the United States only briefly in the evening before going to bed, which Louis D. Covich of No. 323 Washington street, Dorchester, is the treasurer. The organization rent for $300 a year and up, and all but three of the tenants have already moved from the building.

EIGHT FAMILIES FLEE.

Eight families totaling 30 persons rushed from the four-story brick building at No. 27 Anderson street, West End, when cracks appeared in the brickwork across the face of the structure.

A stone keystone in the center above the second story loosened and threatened to fall.

Crowds quickly gathered. Some feared the building was about to collapse. Patrolman Peter P. Ryan of the Joy street station, first on the scene notified Lieut. John McGrath who sent in a call to headquarters. Building Commissioner John J. Mahoney was quickly called to the spot. Details of police roped off the street.

KEYSTONE WORKS LOOSE.

Examination of the building which has its side on Phillips street, showed that the keystone had worked loose. Transverse cracks in the brickwork between the first and second and third and fourth floors could be seen.

Under Commr. Mahony's direction the keystone, of granite, was removed. He declared there was no danger of the building collapsing and the families after taking a good look at the building re-entered one by one although the street remained blocked by the crowds.

The building owned by David Ginnoff of No. 19 Hamilton road, Dorchester, is but 10 years old. It is near the subway under Beacon Hill and vibration of trains and cars, it was said, is believed to have caused it to settle. Today repairs will be made.

Woman in Deadly Stupor 131 Hrs. After Crash

Portland, Me., July 25 (A.P.)—Unconscious more than 131 hours, Mrs. Venita Littlefield, fifty-two years old, of Rumford, Byron in an automobile accident here, died at the Maine General Hospital. Mrs. Littlefield did not regain consciousness after the crash in which she received a fractured skull, a fractured jaw, a compound fracture of the leg, and internal injuries.

Two children of Mrs. Littlefield were hurt in the accident, Debra, fourteen years old, suffering a broken leg, and Grace, eleven, being cut and bruised.

PANIC FEARED OVER SHAKY BUILDINGS

Following the closing of an exclusive apartment house at No. 84 Fenway, Back Bay, and the collapse scare in the West End when a keystone above a window became loose in the tenement at No. 27 Anderson street, Building Commissioner John H. Mahoney today warned Boston residents against the danger of becoming panicky.

The building inspectors are investigating all cases where buildings are reported to be unsafe and are taking precautions to prevent any repetition of the Pickwick Club disaster, but according to Mr. Mahoney there is danger of the people becoming needlessly hysterical.

The exclusive apartment in Back Bay was ordered vacated a week ago when the walls gave evidence of starting to settle. The apartment is built on filled ground, and the piles on which the building rests have been slowly sinking.

Engineers are at work on the building and it will not be opened for occupancy until all danger of further settling of the structure is removed. The apartment house is owned by a corporation of which Louis D. Covich of No. 323 Washington street, Dorchester, is the treasurer. The apartments rent for $300 a year and up, and all but three of the tenants have already moved from the building.

BIG RUSH FOR BEACH OUTINGS

Thousands of Eager Mothers and Children Seek Passes for Nantasket Trips

Thousands of children, all ages and sizes, stood in line this morning for hours in order to get their tickets for the remaining Boston Evening American's Mothers' and Children's Outings to Nantasket Beach.

In the cold grey dawn, around six o'clock, the vanguard of the crowd began to arrive and pick out the vantage points near the magic window.

As the crowd began to increase it was like the famous oysters in Alice in Wonderland: "Thick and fast they came at last and more and more and more."

There was no chance for the early birds to snatch a nap on the job because there were sharp little eyes waiting the first signs of weakening on the part of those who had the choice spots.

It wasn't so easy to keep them in line. They all, with one accord, crowded near the ticket window and overflowed into the street. Those charged with keeping them in order cleared them out, but they always came back, their small faces alight with eagerness.

LINE OF EAGER FACES.

From the outskirts money and coupons were being pressed into the hands of the fortunate ones in front with pleading "Here' little girl, get me with you" until the sharp eyes of Tom Hadley caught them in the act and anyone who took money was threatened with dire punishment.

"You'll have to go to the very end of the line," was the awful threat.

"Mister, I lost one of my coupons," was a frequent plaint.

"Well, then, you'll have to buy another paper."

"Please, mister, I want to go next Tuesday; my ticket says August 4. Can't I go July 28?"

"Fraid not, son. You'll have to go the date marked on your ticket."

The mothers were as eager as the children. One mother had two tiny tots with her, because she had no one to leave them with, so they stood in the line as good as gold, though it must have been a tiresome wait, and every little while one of them would say, "Mamma, are we going on the boat now?" looking eagerly into mother's face.

VISION WORLD OF MAGIC.

When the window opened what a rush! Cries of "Mister, I want—" "Miss, I lost my ticket—" "I was here first," kept things lively for a few minutes, but order was restored and as the covered bits of pasteboard were passed out the owners gripped them in a vise-like clutch and got away quickly.

Then half past eight the line had reached great proportions and passers by looked and smiled, remembering their own youth and the joy of such an outing. "Some bread line," observed one man.

But it wasn't a bread line. It was a milk and Sunshine bread line. It was a joy line. The lively good-natured pushing and scrambling meant only one thing. Visions of a whole long day of fun, where the cool waves wash up on white sand and tickle weary little toes until their owners wiggle for glee.

Visions of penny arcades where a whole world of magic is opened for one little cent. Visions of merry-go-rounds and funny mirrors and shoot the chutes and all the things that are so dear to children—well, yes, children of all ages, some of whom are grownups in years, but youngsters still at heart.

WATCH YOUR TICKETS!

Everyone is welcome, but they MUST go on the date marked on the ticket. There are so many little people—just thousands of them—that they couldn't possibly all get on the same boat.

So, remember, if you don't want to be disappointed, look at the date on your ticket and be at Rowe's Wharf on that date and no other, and then everyone will be happy.

Those whose tickets are marked July 28 should be at Rowe's Wharf on Tuesday morning. The first boat leaves at 9.15 and the second at 10.15. On the return trip the first boat leaves Nantasket at 3.30 and the second an hour later, so that those who left Boston on the later boat will have the same length of time at the beach.

SEEK STRANGER IN DUAL MURDER

New Hampshire authorities, while searching the entire State for the slayer of Miss Georgianna Gillis (above) and her sister, Helen, are particularly seeking a rough looking stranger carrying a club who was seen near the women's home in Hudson, N. H., just before the crime.

WOMAN AUTOIST TO FIGHT JAIL SENTENCE

Mrs. Minnie Gibbs, twenty-nine-year old wife of Charles Gibbs, a former army officer, will fight to the limit the month's jail sentence imposed on her by Judge Stone in East Cambridge Court, following her conviction on the charge of driving a car away after striking a child.

Mrs. Gibbs lives at No. 1193 Commonwealth avenue. She struck a child while driving without a license and stopped the car some distance away. According to her story, the mother took the injured child to the hospital in an automobile before she could return to the scene.

"I agree that I was wrong to be driving without a license, although I was going but a short distance," Mrs. Gibbs said. "But I had tried to get a license three different times, waiting in line at the armory with my instructor more than an hour each time. There were so many people ahead of me that I couldn't wait any longer.

"But as to sentencing me for driving away after knocking down a child. Why, I stopped as soon after as I could. I was so upset that I couldn't have driven away if I had even wanted to. As soon as I could, I went to the scene and found that the mother had rushed the child to the hospital in a passing machine. I followed as quickly as I could.

"As soon as I reached the hospital, my first thought was the baby. After that I called my husband and had a girl call the police station to say I would be right over. I didn't run away."

DENEEN WILL CONFER WITH COOLIDGE

United States Senator-elect Charles S. Deneen of Chicago will visit White Court, the Summer White House at Swampscott, next week and will speak on Wednesday before the Essex Club at Centennial Grove, Essex.

It is expected President Coolidge will have a long conference with him, inasmuch as Senator Deneen starts upon his new duties as a Republican member of the Senate next Fall.

Senator Deneen was Governor of Illinois for eight years and has a record for securing the enactment of constructive legislation, including a primary law, civil service law, uniform accounting systems in State departments, creation of a State educational commission and a constitutional amendment permitting the issuance of bonds for a $500,000,000 waterway linking the Great Lakes with the Gulf of Mexico and waterway development on this waterway.

He is a graduate of McKendree College and taught in country schools in Illinois and night schools in Chicago before he was admitted to the bar. He was State's attorney for Cook County, Illinois, for eight years and a member of the Illinois Legislature before he became Governor.

Senator Deneen comes of pioneer stock. His great-grandfather, Riedon Moore of Delaware, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War who settled in Illinois in 1812 and was Speaker o the Illinois Territorial Legislature as early as 1814.

DR. ALBERT J. OCHSNER IS DEAD IN CHICAGO

Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—Dr. Albert John Ochsner, famous surgeon, died here early today. Death was due to angina pectoris. A widow survives.

Dr. Ochsner, who was sixty-seven years old, was the author of surgical treaties and text books and a contributor to the medical press. Since 1896 he had been chief surgeon of the Augustana Hospital and St. Mary's Hospital here.

He held a major's commission in the medical reserve of the United States Army and memberships in the American College of Surgeons, Royal College of Surgeons (Ireland), Royal Microscopical Society (England), and a fellowship in the American Surgical Association.

DAWES' INTEREST IN BANK IS REVEALED

Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—Vice-President Charles G. Dawes has $333,970 in stock of the Central Trust Company, the bank of which he was an officer, board of assessors' figures disclose.

Dawes Brothers, Inc., own $1,-114,710 of the bank's $10,200,000 capital stock and Rufus C. Dawes, the Vice-President's brother, owns $38,050, the assessors listed.

ABANDON FRENCH BOAT STUCK ON SABLE ISLAND

Halifax, N. S., July 25.—The French steam trawler Labrador, which went ashore on Sable Island has been abandoned, the Halifax wrecking steamer La Canadienne returning to port with the report that the wreck was beyond salvage.

SCOTT TO PLEAD CELL INSANITY

Alienists Who Aided Loeb and Leopold to Aid the Defense

Chicago, July 25 (A.P.)—Cell madness will be the plea of Russell T. Scott in his effort to escape the gallows, from which he has been saved twice within a few hours of the death march.

Alienists who testified for Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, kidnapers-slayers of Robert Franks, will be called on in the effort to prove Scott is suffering from "prison psychosis."

The defense theory will be that his mind has become affected by his fifteen months' confinement and the harrowing experiences of two death watches in the shadow of the noose.

During the ten days allowed them before the sanity hearing, set by Judge Joseph E. David for August 3, William Scott Stewart, Scott's attorney, will assemble psychiatrists for a desperate legal battle to have Scott committed to an asylum.

That the fight will be bitter been indicated by prosecutors, who've Scott is as sane now as at the time when Joseph Maurer, filling clerk, was killed in a holdup. Scott was found guilty of the killing. The State will not cease efforts to make the death sentence carried out.

TWO DROP 50 FEET WITH 500-LB. STONE

Two workmen employed at the new St. Anthony's Church, under construction on Revere street, Revere, had a narrow escape from death when they fell from a fifty-feet staging with a large block of granite weighing about 500 pounds.

Both men were badly shaken up, but at the Chelsea Hospital it was stated they would recover. They are Augustino Russo, forty years old, of No. 78 Prince street, and Salvatore Zarillo, thirty-five, of No. 84 Sheafe street, of this city.

CITY GIVES NO PAY WITH THIS VACATION

Institute Commissioner D. J. Johnson was given a two-months' leave of absence without pay by Mayor Curley, beginning August 3, when he is to sail with Mrs. Johnson for a European tour.

The Mayor designated Dr. John E. O'Brien, acting institute Commissioner for the two-month period, and to receive Dr. Johnson's compensation at the rate of $7,500 a year for the work.

SHENANDOAH BACK FROM DIXIE FLIGHT

Lakehurst, N. J., July 25 (A.P.)—Returning from Virginia, the dirigible Shenandoah landed on the field at the naval air station and was warped into her hangar.

"L" RIDERS FLEE WHEN LIVE WIRE FIRES CAR

A panic was narrowly averted among passengers on a southbound train at the Dover street station of the Boston "L," when a broken feed wire under one of the cars set fire to the grease and oil accumulated on the truck.

The passengers in the car where the fire started finally made their way into adjoining cars. No one was injured and the fire was extinguished without damage to the car.

T. E. McCaffrey Dead

Attleboro, (A.P.)—Thomas E. McCaffrey, formerly head of a department store here and for several years a city assessor, died today.

LOSE 3 CHILDREN WITHIN 3 MONTHS

Lawrence, July 25.—For the third time within as many months, death claimed a victim from among the children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Drummond of No. 62 Farnham street, when their three-year-old daughter, Phyllis Viola, passed away.

Last April the Drummond family included five children, but there now remain but two, a boy and a girl.

QUINCY GIRL DANCE SPECIALIST WITH SHOW

Remember the days when a chorus girl was the object of nothing less than newsright suspicion on the part of her legitimate friends? Well, those days are gone forever. The chorus girl of today, such chorus girls as are members of the "My Girl" company, which is to come to the Wilbur on August 3, is a dance expert, and being a dance expert must keep herself in as good physical condition as a professional athlete.

Barbara Grace, who does a jazz specialty, is a Quincy girl, who has risen rapidly since her first appearance in the "Little Jessie James" chorus.

MRS. CRAIG BIDDLE'S NOSE BROKEN IN CRASH

Los Angeles, July 25 (A.P.).—Mrs. Craig Biddle, Philadelphia society woman, suffered a broken nose in an automobile accident here. The car she was driving crashed into the rear of another machine.

WOMAN, 50 LEAPS TO DEATH FROM 4TH FLOOR

Lowell, July 25.—Mrs. Mary Ann Lavoie, fifty years old, of No. 19 Fourth street, Centralville, jumped from a fourth floor window of the Lowell General Hospital this morning and was killed instantly.

Mrs. Lavoie was a patient in the hospital suffering from a nervous disorder.

"ROSE MARIE" JOURNEYS TO MAJESTIC

Tremont Street Widening Drives Musical Show Out of Shubert

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

"Rose-Marie" will start the new week in a new home.

Crowded out of the Shubert by a crew of efficient building wreckers, the gay Hammerstein musical play will pack its trunks after tonight's performance and trip nimbly down Tremont street to the Majestic.

Twenty feet is to be shaved off Tremont street from Stuart to Arlington square, making "Rose-Marie" and the Shubert Theatre innocent victims of important public improvement. The same show, the same players and the same scenery will take the Majestic stage on Monday night, embarking upon the sixteenth week of what has turned out to be the most sensational Summer attraction the city has ever known. There have been other hot weather plays of merit and prosperity, but they have usually come singly and offered their wares without opposition. "Rose-Marie" has not enjoyed an open field, for Mr. Frazee's "No, No, Nanette" suddenly slipped into town with an unyielding Chicago reputation and proceeded to do business in vigorous fashion.

UNCHANGING FORTUNE.

However, there has been no division of business, for "Rose-Marie" has moved forward with unchanging fortune. Neither temperature nor opposition has checked its popularity or slackened its persistent box office line.

There is superstition among theatre folk that moving an attraction from one theatre to another is a hazard too dangerous to be taken lightly. Mr. Hammerstein may have that superstition—or he may not. In any event there are signs that swapping theatres in this instance will prove an exception to the rule, for there is already a comfortable advance sale to guarantee a brisk start at the Majestic.

As a matter of plain statistics Mr. Hammerstein has often turned a frigid eye upon this prevalent superstition. He has shuffled his theatrical cards when disaster has seemed the only result; he has shifted casts and tossed his employes about until everybody concerned has been groggy. And speaking in the simple language of the rialto, he gets away with it.

SHUFFLES HIS CARDS.

"Rose-Marie" is a fair example of the Hammersteinian plan of operation. None of his three principal companies—now playing Chicago, New York and Boston—has escaped the sharpened blade. A well set, serenely moving cast, is neither serene or easy to the frosty vigil of Arthur Hammerstein. Principals are shifted, shuffled and swapped; they are turned loose upon a hungry world and transferred to other fields with an abandon that startles and almost dumbs the gossips who feed ravenously upon artistic scandal. You may not know who is to sing the title role of "Rose-Marie" tonight, but you do know it will be well sung.

These things are Hammersteinian—pure and simple—and sometimes think they are exceedingly simple. Yet fifteen weeks of "Rose-Marie" in Boston's sweltering Summer, in the face of dangerous opposition and at Broadway prices, rather tips over the dope. Perhaps Hammerstein knows better what his public will accept than any of his less experienced critics.

SMILING FACES ON LOCAL STAGE AND SCREEN

LOUISE GROODY in "NO, NO NANETTE"—TREMONT
MARGIE COATE—PEMBERTON INN
GILBERT EMERY in "INCREDIBLE OF BEING LONDON" EMPIRE—SALEM
LILLIAN LYNDON in "ROSE-MARIE" MAJESTIC...
FRANCES UPTON in "MY GIRL"—WILBUR—AUG 3.
RICHARD GRIFFITH in "PATHS TO PARADISE"—MARY CARR in "DRUSILLA WITH A MILLION"—TREMONT TEMPLE

MARGIE COATE JOINS REVUE AT PEMBERTON

Pemberton Inn is showing a marked tedency to continually improve both the quality and quantity of its musical comedy revue features.

The headline feature, starting tonight and continuing all next week, is the joyous and plump Margie Coate, famously known throughout this country and in London as "The Queen of Syncopation." For those who have never seen or heard this songstress she is best described as combining all of the most popular attributes of May Irwin, Marie Cahill and Sophie Tucker, perpetually radiating good nature and harmony with a magnetic personality.

The picturesque and graceful Elisabeth Brown is proving a favorite with the Pemberton Inn guests and is upholding the reputation she made as a premier ballroom dancer at the Casino at Miami, and at Havana and at Ciro's in London and Paris.

MRS. JOHN BARRYMORE TAKES ON NEW HONORS

Michael Strange will add further laurels to the name of Barrymore, if she will devote herself as consistently to the art of acting as she has to playwriting, according to Hamilton MacFadden, her young director, who is the founder of the American Theatre at Salem, where she is playing. "The wife of John Barrymore has all the necessary requisites for a great career on the stage," says MacFadden. "Beauty, fire, poise, grace, a naturally beautiful speaking voice, and youth!"

So pleased with her work in the bit she did in "Barbara Frietchie," and the talent she has revealed at rehearsals, MacFadden has postponed Peggy Wood's engagement to appear with the American Theatre Company next week, and has cast Michael Strange for the leading feminine part in Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest."

WHO'S WHO IN THE MOVIES

Ronald Colman, who plays Carlo Bucellini, the artist, in the picturization of George Eliot's romantic and historical novel, "Romola," at Loew's State next week, is mistaken, curiously, for an Italian. In point of fact, Ronald Colman is an Englishman. Ronald came to this country with the express purpose of breaking into the movies. He had had some experience on the English stage. But before he had his wish he had to accept a speaking part in "East Is West" with Fay Bainter. This play took him to Los Angeles, and once there he was engaged to play with Lillian Gish in "The White Sisters," which whisked him off to Rome, Italy. And again he was sent overseas, this time to appear with Lillian Gish in "Romola" at Florence.

Florence Turner, once the most celebrated star of moving pictures, in which form of theatrical expression she was a pioneer, has returned to the fold, thanks to the energy and generosity of Marion Davies, Cosmopolitan star, who discovered Miss Turner in London—ill and alone—and who brought her back to America and arranged for her return to pictures. Miss Turner makes her come-back appearance on the screen in "Never the Twain Shall Meet," which comes to the Orpheum next week. Entering the ranks of motion pictures when that form of entertainment was nothing more than a nickelodeon venture, Florence Turner grew up with the profession. As a star for old Vitagraph, she was at one time the screen's most popular actress.

NEW GRIFFITH COMEDY TAKES FENWAY SCREEN

It was a crook role in George Melford's "The Miracle Man," that first elevated Betty Compson to stardom. Now Betty's back on the screen at the Fenway Theatre in another crook role—but this time in a comedy. "Paths to Paradise," which opens today.

"Paths to Paradise," directed by Clarence Badger, at one time associated with Mack Sennett, was written for the screen by Keene Thompson from Paul Armstrong's play, "The Heart of a Thief." Miss Compson is featured with Raymond Griffith, the high-hat comedian.

FORMAL OPENING AT MERRYMOUNT TONIGHT

There will be a formal opening of the Merrymount Ballroom in Wollaston tonight. This extensive dancing and recreation enterprise, directed by Simon Swig, has been operating informally since July 4, but now that all the contemplated improvements and additions have been completed a special program has been arranged for this evening's opening.

The dancing floor is perhaps the largest in Massachusetts, with accommodations for 3,500 people, and with the rest room, promenades and other features a gathering of 5,000 would not overcrowd the place.

For dancing Billy Losee's orchestra furnishes the music.

Hope Blossoms Gayly in Boston's Newest Theatre

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

When the new Famous Players-Keith Theatre, now under construction on Tremont and Hollis streets, throws open its doors Boston, at last, will take its place among cities boasting of magnificently appointed playhouses of large seating capacity. The new theatre will have the largest auditorium in the greater city, with seating accommodations for 5,000 people. Incidentally the Famous Players group of theatres will extend its influence from the far away Fenway on Massachusetts avenue to the heart of the downtown theatre district.

The successful conduct of a theatre imposes obligations upon its directing forces not demanded in ordinary business enterprises. There must be courtesy, comfort and safety as well as good entertainment. There is good reason to hope that the splendid policy governing the operations at the Fenway under the guiding hand of Laurence F. Stuart will be extended to the newer Famous Players theatre when that imposing structure takes its place in Boston's growing theatre family.

Achievements like Mr. Stuart's at the Fenway easily may be accepted as a useful community service—a service not measured entirely in box office receipts but also in a happy relationship between the motion picture patron and his favorite theatre.

SPORT FEATURE OF BIG HOVEY OUTING

Girls Show Their Skill as Nail Drivers, and the "Pie Rivals" Compete

A ball game with the married men lined up against the bachelors, a pie-eating contest and a nail-driving contest for girls were among the features of the sporting program at the annual outing of the Hovey Associates' Mutual Benefit Association at Pemberton today.

The outing began with a parade behind a band to Rowes' Wharf, where the party embarked for Pemberton. The band enlivened things for the excursionists on the way down the harbor.

The sporting events began immediately after the arrival at Pemberton. The events included short dashes for men and for girls, a fat man's race, boat race on land, blindfold wheelbarrow race for girls, sack race, swimming events, threading-needle-in-the-water contest and other events. Prizes were given for each contest.

Dinner at Pemberton Inn was a gay affair, spiced with dancing and novelty entertainment by members of the store association. The ball game followed the dinner.

Richard Ehrlich was general chairman of the outing committee, assisted by an executive committee composed of Blake Lockard, Abraham Snyder, F. W. Belcher, Miss Rose Barry and Miss Della Shine. Others in charge of the arrangements were: Miss Marion Gobler, amusements; William Cole, athletic program; James Calvert, food; Hugh Leahy, location; George McAllister, pictures; Claude Darling, printing; Martin Reid, properties; Miss Ethel Kane, publication; Joseph Shea and Mrs. Wallace, store "pep"; Robert Curry, tickets; and Thomas Sullivan, transportation.

A woman who had an extra room in her pleasant home wanted to rent it to a desirable person. She called Mr. Pevich, the room manager, at Liberty 4000, who told her how it could be done for a few cents a day.

Georgia Wants Anti-Lynching Legislation

Atlanta, Ga., July 25.—An anti-lynching bill has been introduced in the Georgia House. It provides that any officer found guilty of negligence in a "riot, riotous assembly or mob violence," shall be removed from office and the sheriff of the county involved be subject of a suit for $5,000 for each homicide by the mob and "for the full value of property injured or destroyed.

WHAT'S WHAT With Shows REMAINING

"Rose-Marie," moving to the Majestic. (Sixteenth week.) Still holding its own against a rising thermometer.

"No, No, Nanette" at the Tremont. (Thirteenth week.) In which Louise Groody contributes a few fancy steps and a full load of personality.

"Drusilla With a Million" at Tremont Temple. (Fifth week.) Gripping film story of poverty and riches.

WILBUR TO START NEW SEASON WITH "MY GIRL"

The Wilbur Theatre is preparing for its season's opening on Monday, August 3, when "My Girl," a musical comedy, opens an indefinite engagement. "My Girls" is a musical farce, written by Harlan Thompson and Harry Archer, co-authors of "Little Jesse James."

VARIETY AND PICTURES

B. F. KEITH'S—(Vaudeville) Big Brother Bob Emery of radio station WEEI; June Day, Leo Hening and Paul Tesen's Band; Sully and Houghton; in "Arms and the Girl" and other features.

ATHEIST WOULD OMIT 'GOD' IN U. S. OATH

Wittner Challenges Coolidge and All Other Employes In "Liberty" Fight

Washington, July 25 (I.N.S.)—A legal fight, challenging the salaries of the Federal government's great army of employes all over the country, including the President, the Cabinet and members of Congress, was threatened today by Loren H. Wittner, Treasury clerk and author of the national capital's "evolution" suit.

The battle would be centred on the constitutionality of the Federal oath, which includes the words "swear," or "affirm" and "so help me God."

Jacob E. Harper, appointment clerk of the Treasury, called Wittner to his office and demanded to know why he had crossed out the words of the oath. They were objectionable, Wittner said, because he is an atheist.

Should he be further disciplined, Wittner declared, he would resort to the courts to determine whether it was constitutional for the government to demand of its workers "allegiance of faith, or, in reality, belief in God."

"Being a true atheist, I could not conscientiously sign an oath containing 'so help me God,'" Wittner asserted. "It would have demanded I lie.

"I do not believe any court would hold the oath constitutional, for it virtually means government workers must accept a definite religion, Christianity. That violates the first amendment of the Constitution."

In Fight for "Liberty," Declares Wittner

By LOREN H. WITTNER
Written Expressly for the Universal Service

(Copyright, 1925, by Universal Service.)

Washington, July 25.—Liberty has always been the slogan of America. Our forefathers fought and died for civil liberty. The Declaration of Independence proclaimed all men free and equal and the Constitution guaranteed freedom of religion, speech and the press.

But we appear to be in peril of losing the previous heritage of liberty gained by the blood of our forefathers as a result of legislation, both State and National, dictated by intolerance, bigotry and ignorance.

I am fighting for American freedom of religion, education, speech and press. The real purpose of my suit is to awaken public opinion to the dangers of such narrow, reactionary legislation as Congress has saddled on the Washington public schools and to make it impossible to again attempt uniting the church and State.

Intolerance and bigotry, wherever displayed, tend to stop the current of rational thinking and make hope and faith the basis of thought. Science on the other hand, and particularly natural science, approaches all matters by investigation substantiates its theories by demonstrable truths.

I merely want to see the youth of America have the liberty and the opportunity to study science. I have no quarrel with the beliefs of people. All men should have the right to believe in or not believe in the Bible.

VERMONT BOOTLEG KING IS GIVEN FIVE YEARS

Burlington, Vt., July 25.—Leo Bohannon, reputed to be Vermont's most notorious bootlegger, will spend the next five years in the Federal prison at Atlanta. He was sentenced by Judge Howe, after having been found guilty of rum running and using a dangerous weapon to resist arrest.

Considering the two charges as one, Judge Howe recounted that Bohannon failed to stop and speeded away from three customs officers in uniform, and characterized the offense as grave.

8 GOOD REASONS FOR HUB HEALTH CAMPAIGN

Here are eight good reasons why the Boston Tuberculosis Association is conducting its campaign so vigorously to instruct the public in health and hygiene. So remarkable has been the improvement of this octet and many more at the preventorium in Mattapan, that the association leaders have been given encouragement for extending the good work even greater. In the instruction drive, Dr. Charles F. Willinsky, director of city health units, will talk at Central Square Theatre, East Boston, next Tuesday afternoon, at 2:30. The association will also show a film in connection with the regular show at the theatre. In the evening, another speaker will address the audience, Mrs. A. Catherine McGuinness, No. 6 Hartford street, Dorchester, has been named educational secretary of the association for the Summer months and has arranged these talks as part of a series of thirty-five at various theatres, churches, settlement houses, factories and labor union headquarters.

2 WEEKS LEFT FOR GIFTS TO POLICE FUND

Today begins the final two weeks in which you will have opportunity to contribute to the Boston Evening American-sponsored Alexander fund. Two weeks from today, following the big all-star show at Waldron's Casino, now being arranged, the fund will be closed and on the proceeds the widow and six children of Police Inspector Benjamin Alexander must depend for livelihood until they can adjust themselves to their strange and sorrowful condition.

George McLaren of No. 321 Columbus avenue, was a contributor to the fund to the extent of $50. Through a typographical error his contribution was called "five dollars" in a previous announcement.

Have you sent in your contribution yet?

Just three weeks ago today "Benny" Alexander, as fine a policeman as ever wore the shield, lay crushed and cold beneath the wreckage of the Pickwick Club in Beach street.

Brother policemen, firemen, laborers and volunteers battled manfully to rescue those in whom life still remained and to recover bodies of those in whom life was extinct.

The groans and cries of the dying were fading away, and out in Dorchester a grief-stunned woman and her six children knew that the strapping man they had sent to work with a kiss and a smile the night before, would come back to them no more—except in a coffin.

Through all the rescue work, the question of the assembled thousands was:

"Has Alexander been found?"

But when he was found, a new question had arisen; that of taking care of his family. This is the aim of the Alexander fund and all Boston should help.

Do your bit.

pay a price that the government obligingly increases. They must also eat the farmers' wheat, but the government doesn't oblige the farmers by compelling a 40 per cent. increase there.

COMMUTERS alone, on one little part of the New Haven Railroad, will be compelled to pay to that railroad more than one million dollars a year extra.

This is what you might call efficiency.

LLOYDS, British insurance concern, will bet on or against anything. It calls the betting "insurance."

It bets 7 to 1 that Gertrude Ederle will not swim the Channel. At first the betting was 20 to 1 at Lloyds, but American enthusiasm hammered down the odds.

OFTEN Lloyds loses its insurance bets. When Northcliffe offered a $50,000 prize to anybody that would fly across the English Channel, a few years ago, he insured himself with Lloyds against having to pay the money.

And when a flier did cross the Channel, Lloyds, not Northcliffe, paid the $50,000.

This reminds you how swiftly flying has advanced. Now men fly all around the earth.

FARMERS NOT MAKING ENOUGH, SAY EXPERTS

Washington, July 25.—Farmers failed to earn a fair return on the capital invested and a fair wage last year, although they fared better financially than in the preceding year, the Department of Agriculture declared in an analysis of the agricultural balance sheet.

In round figures the net income for the 1924-25 season, the department said, was $2,712,000,000 compared with $1,993,000,000 for 1923-24.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TERM GIVEN BOY THIEVES

Williamsport, Pa., July 25.—Placing them where they shall be taught "Thou shalt not steal," Mayor Gilmore sentenced four boys whose ages range from nine to fourteen years to attend Sunday school regularly for an indefinite period. The boys were charged with taking a pocketbook belonging to their school principal.

NEW DRY CHIEF IS BACKED BY COOLIDGE

JOHN T. LAMBERT,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Defying the tremendous pressure exerted by politicians throughout the country, President Coolidge at White Court, today decided that General Lincoln C. Andrews, the prohibition chief, must have a full and free hand to effect a complete reorganization of the government's prohibition forces.

The President's decision is a direct rebuff to the powerful politicians within his party who have been seeking desperately to dominate Andrews' shakeup of the prohibition unit.

The shakeup will effect the entire prohibition forces. Andrews will drop all the State enforcement directors. He will discharge every one of the several thousand enforcement officers throughout the country.

In the place of the State chiefs, he will appoint twenty-two regional directors. He will determine how many of the discharged officers may be reappointed, and will select the new officers to fill the places of those dropped.

The President's attitude, briefly, is this:

General Andrews was chosen as prohibition chief to enforce the prohibition law and he must have officers under his command with whose ability and integrity he is fully satisfied.

As a result of the pressure exerted upon him by the interests seeking to master the new enforcement outfit, Andrews had decided to delay the shakeup until next month. He can now proceed with the President's assurance that he need not recognize the political interference.

The President also gave the country the assurance that the tariff law will stand as is through the next session of Congress.

PEMBERTON TROLLEY MAY BE ABANDONED

The electric railway between Nantasket Beach landing and Pemberton may be abolished after this Summer and a boulevard laid out on the site of the present road bed which buses operating between the places now served by the railway.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford road, which operates the line, says profits of the Summer season do not make up for the deficit of operation in the other months.

ORDERS MEALS FOR 2 AND KILLS HIMSELF

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—A young man in evening clothes which had foreign trademarks, shot and killed himself in the dining room of the fashionable Hotel Plaza on Fifth avenue early today after ordering a dinner for two. He entered the hotel hatless and had the waiter change his order several times. When the waiter went out to fill the order, the man drew a revolver and shot himself through the heart.

His coat bore the trademark of a dealer in Hamburg, Germany, and his collar that of an English haberdasher. His pockets contained a dime and a package of cigarettes.

U. S. TREASURY GUARDS GIVEN RIOT GUNS

Increased Armament at Washington Building Proves Mystery

Washington, July 25 (Universal).—For a reason closely guarded by officials, sawed-off shotguns—the deadliest short-range weapons known—have been secretly distributed in the various offices of the Treasury building, it was learned authoritatively today.

The immediate cause for adding this deadly battery to the elaborate machinery against theft or loss to the treasury, long regarded as the Gibraltar of the world's gold repositories, is a complete mystery.

Whether the installation of riot guns throughout the great structure is an emergency measure to thwart a well-laid plot to loot the vaults, or merely an added protective scheme cannot be ascertained.

Full confirmation of the placing of a supply of weapons in a score of offices in the building, however, was obtained from the heads of the divisions charged with protecting the millions of dollars of gold and silver bullion and coin, currency and securities against outside attack or inside theft.

"There is no special significance attached to the placing of guns in the various offices," said one official. "It is simply a matter of precaution and a decided improvement upon protective measures heretofore used."

This tranquil statement, however, fails to cover the radical departure from former methods of guarding the nation's gold.

HERBERT J. WOLF POST TO GO ON OUTING

The members of the Herbert J. Wolf Post of the American Legion of Dorchester will hold their first outing of the season tomorrow at Lake Canobis. The members and their families will leave the post headquarters in automobiles at 9 a. m. A complete program of sporting events and contests has been arranged for the day and prizes will be awarded the winners of the various events. A baseball game between the married and single men will be one of the features of the outing.

SLOT METER CAUSES EVERETT MAN'S DEATH

An open gas jet caused the death of William Robinson, thirty-seven, of No. 71 Paris street, Everett, when his sister-in-law, not realizing that there was an open jet in the house, put a quarter in the meter. In a short time Robinson's bedroom was filled with gas.

'German Ring' Now Takes Place of Iron Cross

Stuttgart, July 25.—The "German Ring" has been created as a new distinction by the Foreign German Institute. This fingering ring is to be accorded every year to such person who has merited the distinction by reason of having served the German cause abroad in some special form.

RIFFS IN FLIGHT AS TOWNS ARE BURNED

Fez, Morocco, July 25.—Twenty-four villages are burning within an eight-mile radius of Taounat after an intense bombardment by French artillery. A thousand Riffians are in flight pursued by more than 100 airplanes. The French are taking the initiative along the entire front.

The news of the arrival of Marshal Petain and General Naulin with reinforcements has given them new morale and strength to continue, but the basic fact is that their physical condition must not be forgotten.

Aviators returning today from scouting expeditions report that Abdel-Krim's regulars are trekking northward toward the Mediterranean Sea, but that they appear to be decided to make a stand on the southern slope of the Atlas mountains on the line running from Quezan north to El Bibane and through the Beni Ibrahim tribesmen country and Heikadi, Taberrant and Tafraout to the Algerian frontier.

SKIPPER IS CHARGED WITH RUM-RUNNING

Captain Lucas Crowell and Mate Gerald P. Kinz of the sea-going tug Kingfisher which is tied up at the Appraisers' Stores building on Atlantic avenue, are expected to be arrested today on conspiracy warrants sworn out by the Federal authorities in Portland, Me.

The warrants have been forwarded to Boston and meanwhile the two officers are being kept under surveillance.

The Federal authorities claim the Kingfisher towed the rum-laden barge Smith Line No. 1 into Rockland Harbor, two weeks ago.

The tug was captured off the cape early this week.

CROWDS MOURN AT CARDINAL BEGIN'S BIER

Body of Quebec Prelate Laid to Rest Beside Remains of 16 Predecessors

Quebec, July 25 (A.P.).—While thousands thronged the church and others gathered outside, Cardinal Begin, seventeenth Archbishop of Quebec, was buried today in the Crypt of the Basilica, beside the remains of his sixteen predecessors, and impressiveness marked the interment.

Throughout the city signs of deep mourning were draped in black and Sunday, were augmented by large many private houses displayed tokens of grief.

The crowds which assembled to mourn the Cardinal, who died last Sunday, were augmented by large numbers of pilgrims arriving here on the eve if the Feast of Ste. Anne de Beaupre.

4 P. C. AUTOISTS COLOR BLIND, SAYS EXPERT

Atlantic City, July 25.—Color blindness, misleading highway signs and disrespect for law were principally responsible for the 750,000 automobile accidents last year, Dr. Walter V. Bingham told Secretary Hoover's committee on the cause of accidents.

"Four per cent. of automobile drivers are color blind, and cannot distinguish between red and green lights," he said.

PRINCE AAGO OF DENMARK WOUNDED IN MOROCCO

Madrid, July 25.—Prince Aago of Denmark, captain in the French Foreign Legion in Morocco, has been wounded in the recent drive against the Riffs. He recently was decorated for valor, for delivering dispatches under fire in the Riff attack on Biban.

The RED LACQUER CASE

by PATRICIA WENTWORTH

A Thrilling Novel of Love and Adventure, Mystery and Intrigue That Every-One Will Want to Read

SALLY MEREDITH, nervy niece of

M. FREDERICK LASALLE, war gas inventor, is intrusted with the secret of opening the red lacquer case containing the formula sought by spies of rival governments. That night the red lacquer case is stolen and Lasalle mysteriously disappears. The case is so constructed that the forvula is destroyed by one not in the secret.

MAJOR BILL ARMITAGE, seven years previously the sweetheart of Sally, appears in search of Lasalle. Unexpected meeting renews acquaintance, but Sally is coy.

DETECTIVE WILLIAMS enters the mystery and takes up the trail of the stolen case.

ETTA SHAW, once friend of Sally, lures the girl to London. She is made a prisoner by Lazare, the Goggled Terror. Lazare attempts to terrorize Sally, but fails. Sally's jailers learn from spies that Bill is coming to search Etta's house, the prison. Etta pretends to let Sally escape so that they may recapture her when Bill goes. Bill finds Lasalle.

Read on and enjoy this wonderful story of love and mystery.

Bill opened the doors carefully. No burglar could have done better.

Posed by Wellington Cross of the "No, No, Nanette" Co.

SASCHA locked the drawing room window after Sally had climbed out. Then he started to play his violin and Lazare burst in, wild with anger.

"Is this a time to play?" he said, and came striding into the room.

Sascha fell back before him.

"What is it?" he stammered.

"She's gone. She's taken the case and gone. That's all, and, if you don't hanker after prison life, you'll turn to and find her before she gets clear away and brings the police down on us. If you've any sentiment in the matter, just think what your hands will be like after picking oakum for five years or so. It will be good-bye to that cursed fiddle of yours, anyway."

"Five years!" gasped Sascha. "Prison!" His voice failed.

"Abduction is a pretty serious affair if one is caught. Pull yourself together, we'll find her, we must find her. How long have you been in here? Are these windows all fastened?"

Lazare parted the curtains, letting the light shine upon the catch of the nearer window. Seeing that it was latched, he was passing to the farther one when there came to them from outside a tearing sound followed by a thud.

With an oath Lazare sprang to the floor and made down the stairs at top speed, calling upon Sascha to follow him.

Sally had not waited for Lazare to burst into the room. As soon as she saw Sascha's hand go up to latch the window, she gripped the thick but rather loosely hanging wistaria stalk in one hand, the close-growing ivy with the other, and, feeling with her toes for any slight foothold, swung herself gingerly off the window sill. Eight years before she had been the bright particular star of her school gymnasium, but she was sadly out of practice, and the wistaria stem felt horrifyingly loose and brittle. She shifted her grip carefully, and came down a foot or two. She reckoned that the window was not more than twelve or fourteen feet above the ground, fifteen at the outside. The ivy held well, and she gained confidence and let herself down another five or six feet, scared by the rustle of the leaves and the sound of the voices in the room above.

And then, all of a sudden, the ivy stem which she was gripping tore away from the wall, her foot slipped from its precarious hold, and she fell outwards and backwards, hardly repressing a cry. The distance was nothing, the ground below a newly dug bed in which bulbs had just been planted. Sally was shaken and frightened but not hurt, and the fright and the shaken feeling were due not only to the fall, but to the sound which followed it. As she lay huddled up on the moist earth and gasped for breath, she heard Lazare's oath and the rush of feet, and in a moment she was scrambling up and running somehow, anyhow, away from the house.

It was dark, but not pitch dark; trees, bushes and walls were blacker than the general gloom. Sally's feet

DOROTHY CASWELL WINS PARIS DECREE

Mail Order Rum Traffic Extends to 29 States

AGENTS IN 12 CITIES HUNTED

Customers to Be Brought Before Grand Jury in Sweeping Probe of Plot

New York, July 25.—Investigation by the Federal Grand Jury of the mail order rum ring, charged by the government to have been operating from New York in at least twenty-nine States, is becoming national in scope.

Subpoenas have been issued for customers of the ring in the twelve cities, Emory R. Buckner, U. S. attorney for the southern district of New York, said. The customers will be brought here to testify before the Grand Jury during the next two weeks.

Through the testimony of the customers the Government hopes to learn the names of the ring's representatives and salesmen in the different cities. The books and records of the ring, seized in a raid on the rings offices at No. 1123 Broadwa did not disclose the names of the local representatives and salesmen. They were designated in the books by numbers.

WITNESSES SOUGHT.

The names of the customers and "prospects" were listed, however, and it is through these that U. S. Attorney Buckner hopes to run down the agents. The cities to which the subpoenas are on the way are: Detroit; Columbus, Ohio; Washington, D. C.; Oklahoma City; Chicago; Sioux City, Iowa; Des Moines, Iowa; Fairfax, Oklahoma; Kansas city, Minneapolis, St. Louis and Philadelphia.

Subpoenas are expected to be issued for witnesses in other cities. Assistant U. S. Attorneys John M. Harlang and John J. Fogarty, who have been specially assigned to the investigation, said they expect to call before the Grand Jury no less than forty witnesses from New York city.

One of the first out-of-town witnesses to testify before the Grand Jury in its investigation was Miss Irene Griffin, of No. 601 Park street, Sioux City, Iowa. Miss Griffin is in charge of a cigar counter in a well known Sioux City apartment hotel.

EIGHT TAKEN IN RAID.

The nature of her testimony was not disclosed by the U. S. Attorney further than that it had to do with her having receipted for shopmen's made by the ring from this city. Miss Griffin checked out of the Hotel Astor Thursday night to return to her home.

Eight men were arrested in the raid upon the ring's offices. They were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter on the charge of conspiracy to violate the Volstead law. Two of the number were later indicted by the Grand Jury on the charge of possessing counterfeit internal revenue stamps. They were Jacob Kirschenblatt and Sol Adamsky.

Woman Pays $100 to Finder of Handkerchief

New York, July 25.—A record reward of $100, approximately $4 per square inch, was paid by Mrs. T. W. Blake of the Hotel Chatham for the return of a lace-edged handkerchief.

The name of the finder, who came in answer to her classified advertisement, Mrs. Blake did not even inquire. With what romantic associations the small square of fine linen was fraught she refused to divulge.

PLACES $25,000 ATTACHMENT ON HUSBAND

Fitchburg, July 25—After forty years of married life, Mrs. Lena Thompson has started divorce action against her wealthy husband, John S. Thompson of No. 107 Summer street, alleging cruelty, intoxication and non-support.

The husband is the principal owner of the New England Curtain Company.

An attachment of $25,009 has been filed against Mr. Thompson's property and the court has issued an injunction preventing him from assigning or parting with any of his tangible personal property, such as stocks and bonds, and has also enjoined the curtain concern from permitting him to transfer any of his stock on its books.

The couple were married here 40 years ago. The libel is returnable Sept. 11. Mrs. Thompson is now living with friends.

Pending trial of a bill in equity, brought several weeks ago by Mr. Thompson, who asks the court to compel his wife to deed back to him her house, Mrs. Thompson has stipulated that she will not dispose of it. Her husband alleges that she persuaded him to deed it to her, misrepresenting to him at the time that a lawsuit was about to be brought against him.

Former Atty. Gen. Herbert Parker of Boston represents Mr. Thompson.

MANCHU WAR LORD MAY AVENGE U. S. MAN'S DEATH

Peking, July 25 (A.P.).—Nothing has been heard concerning the whereabouts of Dr. Harvey J. Howard of the Rockefeller Hospital at Peking, taken prisoner by brigands July 20 while visiting the ranch of Morgan Palmer, a native of New York State, in Manchuria. Palmer was killed, but his mother, a son of Dr. Howard, and Harold Baldwin, formerly of Derby, Ct., and his wife and child escaped. There is reason to believe that General Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord, will be stirred to action, since Palmer was highly regarded by him. The American Consul at Mukden, Samuel Sokobin, is expected to reach the scene of the attack at any moment. Roger Green, business director of the Rockefeller Hospital, has gone north to assist in the search.

DIVORCES CLUBMAN IN PARIS

"Perfect Match" of War Is Wrecked as Decree Is Granted to Mrs. George A. Fuller

A wartime romance, in which a prominent Boston society girl was one of the principals, has been wrecked via the Seine Tribunal in Paris, graveyard of many an American matrimonial bark.

A cablegram from Paris today announced that a divorce had been granted to Mrs. Dorothy Caswell Fuller from George Allen Fuller, prominent New England clubman.

Mrs. Fuller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Caswell of Beacon street and Manchester-by-the-Sea. Her wedding in 1919 to Lieutenant Fuller, lately of the United States Army, was one of the social events of the season.

NUPTIALS WERE GORGEOUS.

The wedding, solemnized at Emanuel Church in Boston, was the culmination of a romance that blossomed during the war.

Society leaders from Boston, New York and Newport were among the guests, while Major-General Clarence R. Edwards and members of his staff gave the ceremony the distinction of a semi-military affair.

Following the wedding the couple left on a private car for a honeymoon in California.

Upon their return East Mrs. Fuller was accepted as one of the social leaders in New York society, where her husband was an active member in many of the leading clubs. The Fullers were also active in Boston and North Shore social circles.

The Fullers were apparently an ideally mated pair and the news of the divorce came as somewhat of a shock to their friends.

BOTH POPULAR.

George Fuller is a member of the Union Club, the New York Club, the Rockaway Hunting Club, the Racquet and Tennis Club, Turf and Field, the New York Yacht Club and the Badminton Club.

His wife was active in the social affairs in connection with her husband's club life and was a recognized leader of the younger social set.

The grounds upon which Mrs. Fuller procured the divorce were not given in the Paris cablegram.

BOSTON PEOPLE SAIL ABROAD ON MAJESTIC

The White Star liner Majestic, sailing from New York today for Southampton, has among her first cabin passengers Jay Abrams and James J. White of Boston; Sir Bertram Hayes, formerly commander of the Majestic; Edward Billings Jr., Mrs. Moir Grant, Roger W. Cutler of Boston, and Charles A. Heaton of New Haven.

HUB SOCIETY WAR BRIDE DIVORCED

When beautiful Dorothy Caswell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Caswell of Beacon street and Manchester-by-the-Sea, became the wartime bride of the dashing Lieutenant George Allen Fuller, equally as prominent socially and noted as a New York clubman, society stamped the match as ideal—"just perfect, you know." Yesterday Mrs. Fuller won her decree of divorce in Paris.

LAST RITES FOR PLANE CRASH VICTIM TODAY

The funeral of George Burroughs, Boston real estate man, who was killed along with Lieutenant March C. Hogue, when the airplane in which they were riding, nose-dived onto the tracks of the Narrow Gauge railroad at East Boston, will be held at 1 P. M. today in Trinity Church, Boston.

Robert O'Brien, State inspector of the airplane division of the registry of motor vehicles of the State, is investigating the accident and will make a report to Registrar Frank A. Goodwin.

BOSTON YACHT OWNER GETS BACK LIQUOR

Portland, Me., July 25—Over zealous prohibition officers who searched the private yacht of James E. Doherty of Boston for liquor had the somewhat doubtful pleasure of returning six bottles of whisky which they confiscated to the owner of the craft.

The dry agents searched every nook and cranny of the boat and carried off the six quarts.

Mr. Doherty, however, promptly appeared before United States District Attorney Frederick R. Ryder, and presented a permit from prohibition headquarters showing that the liquor was legally aboard his boat. Thereupon there was nothing left for the district attorney to do but order the liquor returned.

'DOC' COOK 'SEWS FOR SANITY'

Leavenworth Prison Official Says Needlework Prevents Breakdown of Prisoner

San Francisco, July 25 (Universal).—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, famed for his Arctic explorations and for his oil swindles, is in desperately bad shape mentally and physically in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Warden W. I. Biddle said in an interview here today.

The virility that sent Cook out into the frozen north to hunt for the pole has so far degenerated that he now spends most of his time in his cell doing fine fancy needlework. Early this year he started serving a 14-year sentence in Leavenworth for using the mails to defraud in a Texas oil swindle.

The needlework is a device to keep Cook's increasingly morbid mind from losing its focus, Biddle said. Fancy centrepieces, luncheon s' doilies, and other daintily embroidered pieces are all that keep the man who, on April 21, 1908, startled the world with the announcement from Etah, Greenland, that he had discovered the North Pole, from sinking into hopeless melancholia.

So fine are some of the fruits of his pathetic industry that a luncheon set he made, consisting of tablecloth, napkins and doilies, won first prize at a needlework exhibit at Kansas City recently, according to the warden. Cook sends samples of his work for exhibitions of this sort under an assumed name.

"Cook is in no danger of death," said Biddle. "His whole physical state is low, but his mind is in worse shape than his body."

THRUST CUTS FRIEND, BULL FIGHTER KILLS SELF

Medina, Spain, July 25 (I.N.S.).—The bull fighter's complex was exemplified at Berendo today when comedy gave way to tragedy and an unsuccessful sportsman committed suicide by throwing himself beneath a train.

Adolfo Lopez, an amateur bull fighter, was giving an exhibition and through an awkward movement thrust the banderilla into a friend who had seated himself on the bull's back. The spectators jeered and Lopez felt the shame so keenly he ended his life.

CITY TITLE MATCHES TO BE HELD IN AUGUST

EVENTS IN ALL SPORTS PLANNED

General Field Day for All the Youngsters Will Be Held on August 22

By GEORGE W. GRIMM.

Members of the Boston Park Department are making elaborate plans for the big athletic fêtes on the program for the remainder of the outdoors season. Commissioners James B. Shea and William P. Long already have completed plans for the holding of swimming meets in the Dorchester, East Boston, Charlestown and South Boston Districts, on August 6 and 7.

The winners in the various events will later meet in the grand final meet on August 23 off the Head House, City Point, where they will compete for the Municipal titles. There is also planned a one-mile senior N. E. A. A. A. U. championship event in conjunction with the city title races.

NET MATCHES AUGUST 3.

Another feature attraction will be the competition for the Municipal Tennis championships for the boys' and girls' junior and senior singles and doubles, and mixed doubles, which start on August 3, on the courts at Franklin Field. The finals of this event will be held on August 29.

Other plans are being arranged for City Golf championships on the Municipal Links at Franklin Park. While at L Street, the handball instructors are starting to take entries for the Hand Ball Tournament, which is always a big feature at the world famous bath house.

August 23 will find the young fellows at Charlesbank Outdoor Gymnasium holding their set of athletic games, while World War Memorial Park, East Boston, and Franklin Field, Dorchester, are also listed for district track games on the same day.

BIG FIELD DAY FEATURE.

A new feature is to be tried out this Summer by the Park Department, and that is, to hold a general field day for the youngsters at Columbus Park, South Boston, on August 22, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

There will be a complete program of sports for the boys and girls, including baseball, volley ball, throwing ball for distance, relay races, egg races, obstacle races, tug of war, human burden relay race, throw and catch baseball relay, tennis matches and soccer football games.

Then there is always the closing golf tournament of the season, which Mayor James M. Curley and the Park Commissioners hold for the Boston Newspapermen's Golf Association. This will be a special day of fun for the scribes who are able to get away for the play and suitable prizes will be awarded.

Pacing Stars at Revere Tonight

George Chapman, who is leading the field in the race for the American paced championship, has his lead cut down so much a narrow margin that he is in danger of losing top position should he fail to score in tonight's title race at the Revere track.

Chapman has scored 21 points so far, with Vincent Madonna, the Italian flyer, running second with 20 points.

An attack of indigestion has kept Madonna from displaying his best ankling. A New York doctor relieved him of his disorder and Revere fans may expect to see Vincent pedalling as of old in tonight's race.

Henri Wynsdau of Belgium is the third on the list with 14 points. Frank Keenan and Charles Verkeyn have each scored 12 points. Gustav Ganay, the Frenchman, has only three points to his credit, but Ganay competed in only one race, Pichions subbing for him until his arrival in this country.

These six pacing whirlwinds will battle it out tonight over the hour route.

For the lovers of sprint racing Manager Butler will provide three one-mile dashes that will have Ray Eaton, Al Grenda and Orlando Piani doing the honors.

As it is a lengthy card the opening gun will be fired at 8:15 sharp.

Well, boys and girls, sixteen years and under, the baseball contest is resumed full blast today with a picture to identify, a coupon, a list of rules an' everythin'.

The first 9 boys to send in, on the coupon the correct identification of today's picture get a free seat at next Tuesday's Red Sox game. The first fifty girls get grandstand seats.

We repeat the rules of the contest. Speed and a strict following of the rules will count big. These rules are:

Contestants must paste the coupon on the back of a postcard and mail, or write their answer in lead pencil or ink. Coupons in envelopes are ineligible.

Tickets may be called for from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. each week day.

Each winning contestant, boy or girl, who finds his or her name in the paper, must bring a copy of that paper to this office, so that they may point out their names for identification purposes.

Names of winners on today's photograph will appear in the late editions of Monday's paper. Winners will call at this office Tuesday and get their ticket, providing they bring a copy of the paper containing their names.

The scene on Tuesday shifts to Fenway Park, where the Red Sox are opening a long home stay.

The first fifty girls will receive grandstand seats. Regular big league high-priced seats. The boys, always gallant, will have to content themselves with bleacher seats, but owing to the increasing interest girls are showing in sports they will have special colored tickets permitting them to sit in the grandstand.

Boys will be boys, and all that, BUT. The more decorum that obtains at the ball yard the better. We expect that you parents, boys, will explain this decorum word to you. Boys, guests of the Boston Evening American and the management of the ball yard, should be a credit to themselves and the national pastime.

BRAVES CLOSE HOME STAY THIS P. M.

By NICK FLATLEY

Boston will turn out in large numbers this afternoon to say farewell to Dave Bancroft and his Braves. The Wigwam boys play the Giants for the last time in Boston this season, and then go away for three weeks on the trails. If they can perform at all like they have been here recently, they will be well out of the cellar when they get back. They are, on their present form, the best team that ever parked in the coal bin as late in the season as July 25.

The local populace is for the team. There has been real baseball at the Tepee ever since the Pirates registered. That Pittsburgh series was a bird, and the present mixup with the Giants has been along the same order. The boys like to thump the leaders. They have knocked the McGraws off the top perch, just as they did the Cornairs. They can administer an almost fatal blow by winning again this P. M.

A victory today will give the club an even break in the fireside engagements. Pretty good, when you stop to think that the athletes lost six of their first nine. Against the Pirates, Cubs and Giants they have won six and lost four.

THE Braves have finally worked a pitching staff into shape. Larry Benton a real wonder, blazed the trail, and Cooney, Smith and Graham have joined the parade. If Jess Barnes and Genewich can step in and do their stuff, the approaching pilgrimage will be star spangled and profitable.

Young Mister Benton unfolded a masterly effort yesterday. He let down the Giants with seven hits and was never in serious trouble from start to finish. He had perfect control and a lot of stuff on the ball. No fewer than 15 of the batsmen were retired on fly balls. One that Welsh pulled down after a long run back was the only tough capture. Five Giants perished on simple groundera, three died by the fan route, and another was picked off stealing.

Larry gave the Brave fielders a vacation, which is the sign of real hurling these days of the lively marble. That makes some eight games in a row which the lucky man has pitched well enough to deserve special credit. His last four, all at home here have been victories. He didn't lose against the Cards, but beat the Reds, Pirates, Cubs and Giants. He isn't far from the top of the heap in the important matter of earned runs.

New Jersey May Ban Dempsey

Los Angeles, July 25.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, today announced he was determined to box Harry Greb or some other leading contender in Michigan City in September and Harry Wills next year. He said he would immediately start training.

Dempsey said he would confer with hi manager, Jack Kearns, today or the next week and that Kearns would approve both matches.

Trenton, N. J., July 25 (A.P.).—Unless Jack Dempsey is willing to meet a logical contender for his title as heavyweight champion of the world, the New Jersey boxing commission is prepared to turn thumbs down on the staging of the bout in this State.

This attitude to be assumed by New Jersey was set forth in a statement today by State Boxing Commissioner Newton A. K. Horney, who said that he could see no reason why Dempsey should insist on one or more preliminary bouts before engaging in a real battle. The public is growing weary, Mr. Bugbee believes, of "setups."

HOLD TROPHY RACE TODAY AT ONSET

Onset, July 25.—A street parade featured the second day of the regatta at Onset under the auspices of the Samoset Canoe Club. This morning at 9 o'clock the assemblage swung into line, and through the streets came a weird procession.

The decorated doll carriage division saw some artistic baby busses, decorated in a manner befitting royalty. The horribles who followed along in line presented such freak sights as were never before witnessed along the cape.

Many beautiful floats were entered, depicting various historical events. Besides, there was a division of decorated automobiles and a commercial division.

The efforts of the committee to stage an impressive parade was highly successful, and the participants were warmly praised for their novel and entertaining ideas.

This afternoon at 1 o'clock the senior class paddling races will start, and include one man, single and double races, tandem single and double blade, senior club four single and double blade and mixed tandem events.

There will be also a one-man single blade race open to eastern division members only for the Gordon Burroughs trophy.

At half past eight tonight there will be a water parade with decorated and illuminated craft of every description entered. At ten thirty the committee will judge the best illuminated building.

The program of tomorrow, the final day of the meet, will open with religious services at the camp at 10 o'clock. At 11 the annual meeting of the American Canoe Association will be held.

At 12:30 the veterans' race will start, followed by water sports. At 2 o'clock the speed boat races for the Senator Butler Trophy will be held. A war canoe race and a bathing beauty contest will precede the big mass meeting at 5 o'clock, at which time prizes will be awarded for the winners in all contests for the entire meet.

PROGRAM FOR SUNDAY.

RED SOX PLAY ATHLETICS

Philadelphia, July 25.—The Mackmen meet the Red Sox in the third of their four-game series this afternoon. Lee Fohl's team is out to jolt the Athletics, and will do its best to topple the pennant contenders today and Monday.

The Red Sox will wind up their series here on Monday, and then start back to Boston. At Fenway Park on Tuesday, the Sox will open their home stand with Cleveland.

During their coming stay at Fenway, the Red Sox are determined to make a strong effort to rise out of the depths. Fohl's men can play brilliant ball on occasions, and no doubt will be better than when they are playing before the home town rooters.

RUNYON SAYS

Goodrich a Plodder. He Lacks Inspiration. But Is a Good Fighter. He Wears Golf Clothes. They Call Him Lucky.

By DAMON RUNYON

YOUNG JIMMY GOODRICH of Buffalo, the New York State Athletic Commission's new lightweight champion, is a good example of the persistency of the uninspired.

Young Jimmy Goodrich is plodding, perserverting. He is possessed of no divine fistic afflatus, an afflatus being an elevating and consoling, or even mastering natural impulse. Also, it is a type of erysipelas, so named from its suddenness, if you wish to engage in a general discussion of afflatuses.

Damon Runyon

There is nothing sensational in Jimmy Goodrich's style of fighting. You watch him in battle and you cannot see how he is winning, yet you realize that he IS winning. The writer once likened him to the baseball pitcher of whom the opposing batsmen say, disgustedly, "He ain't got a thing," as he turns them back, hitless, one after the other.

And that is how Jimmy Goodrich impresses. He doesn't seem to have much in the way of ability, even when he is winning. But he WINS.

IN any event, Jimmy Goodrich is the lightweight champion in New York State, the winner of a tournament promoted by the New York State Athletic Commission to determine a successor to the retired Benny Leonard, lightweight championship of the world.

Whether Jimmy Goodrich is the lightweight champion of the world is another matter. There is, after all, quite a little to this world outside of New York State, although you might have some difficulty convincing a New York Stater of this fact. You might even have difficulty convincing the New York State Athletic Commission of it.

Lightweights from all parts of the country were invited to take part in the tournament. There was one entry from Chile, one from Lafayette, Pa., and one from Cuba, which gave a cosmopolitan tone to the affair. Some say the calibre of the contestants was strictly 23, but perhaps this is the fault of the lightweight division, not of the tournament.

ANYWAY, Jimmy Goodrich, of Buffalo, came out of the melee quite victorious, even if Benny Leonard did quit the premises the night of the final bout sniffing disdainfully.

This was the night Jimmy Goodrich knocked Stanislaus Loayza, of Chile, bow-legged. Goodrich struck the writer as a pretty good fighter that night, though some say he is merely lucky.

He let Loayza flounce around him with weird flourishes for a moment, studying him closely. Then Goodrich swiftly stepped into an opportunity and spread the Chilean out on the floor. He kept knocking Loayza down until the bell sended the first round.

On one of the knockdowns, the Chilean injured an ankle, and his seconds chucked in a towel in the second round.

OUIMET PLAYS HERSEY FOR GOLF TITLE

FLATLEY CALLS 'EM

Pep Makes Stars Women and Boxing Fan Is Funny Bird

By NICK FLATLEY

DAVE BANCROFT, manager of the Braves, likes to play exhibition games. Usually the big league athlete grouches and kicks when he has to like to the small town and do his stuff on an off day. His only works six months a year, a couple of hours per diem for a fat salary, but he wants his rest just the same.

Nick Flatley

But Banny, one of the greatest of all shortstops, gets a kick out of the exhibition stuff. It's all fun for him. He's baseball crazy, which is the answer to his remarkable success. Most of the young men who fall in the large show do so because they don't carry real enthusiasm for the sport along with their natural ability. Baseball is just a job to them. And the leagues are overcrowded with what you might call clock punchers.

MRS. JULIA LYDIG HOYT, society leader, was a spectator at the bantamweight title bout in New York the other night. Women the country over are getting interested in boxing. It's a good thing for the game. If enough women patronize it, it will continue to be successful.

The girls will not stand for the rough stuff, and the generally bad conditions that every so often threaten to wipe the game out of existence. Let the art of socking off the national program. More and more women are attending the bouts in Boston. They come to see what it is that thrills their husbands or sweethearts or brothers, and find that there's nothing really brutal, and plenty that's exciting, in a good scrap. They find out why the boys like to have "fight nights" off, and that, the boys tell us, helps a whole lot.

WHICH reminds us that we criticised a young man for insisting that a groggy fighter be allowed to continue at the last Suffolk show. The young man in question was acting as manager, and we figued he was cutting in, which means taking a share, usually half, of the battler's pay.

The young man, Jerry Moffet by name, isn't a manager. He's just a fan who likes to travel around with fighters. He is interested in young Mister Conley, the boxer in question, and trails along with him. Forgets his business to do it. He tells us that his pugilistic pal did the insisting, said he wasn't hurt, nor anything. That, at least, convinces us that the boxer had been knocked dizzy. But it absolves Jerry, who goes on to say that his friend took on the bout at short notice, and didn't have time to train.

ALL sports have fans who spend all their money and their time because they like the game. The championship ball clubs always have a few perpetual rooters, who live with the team all year, from the Spring training to the World Series. Pay their own way, and generally act as an entertaining committee for the club and the athletes.

Peter McKenna, the well known Woburn umpire, goes South every Spring with the Braves. He takes in the Olympic games, and all big international events.

cis caught Herbert Jaques well off his usual steady game and he came in a 6 and 4 winner.

In the semi-final round, Francis had one of the narrowest escapes of his career. Eddie Murphy, the sixteen-year-old boy from the Charles River Country Club, had Francis one up on the eighteenth tee. A poorly played shot out of the rough, which landed short of the green, opened the way for Ouimet to square the match, and he promptly took advantage of Murphy's error, forcing the match to go an extra hole. Francis was right down the middle of the nineteenth tee, while Murphy was in the rough on the right. Eddie played another poor shot, the ball stopping about 25 yards short of the track and Francis put his second on, and it was all over

While Ouimet was turning three of his four opponents back without coming out of second speed, Winthrop Hersey had been stepping on it, all through his four matches.

Milton W. Vedder, the club champion at Belmont Springs, took Hersey right to the home green, as did Fred C. Newton, who is one of the best match players in this district. Then came David Whiteside, who was one of the sensations of the tournament. Whiteside took a 3 and 2 count from Hersey yesterday morning, after a real tough struggle.

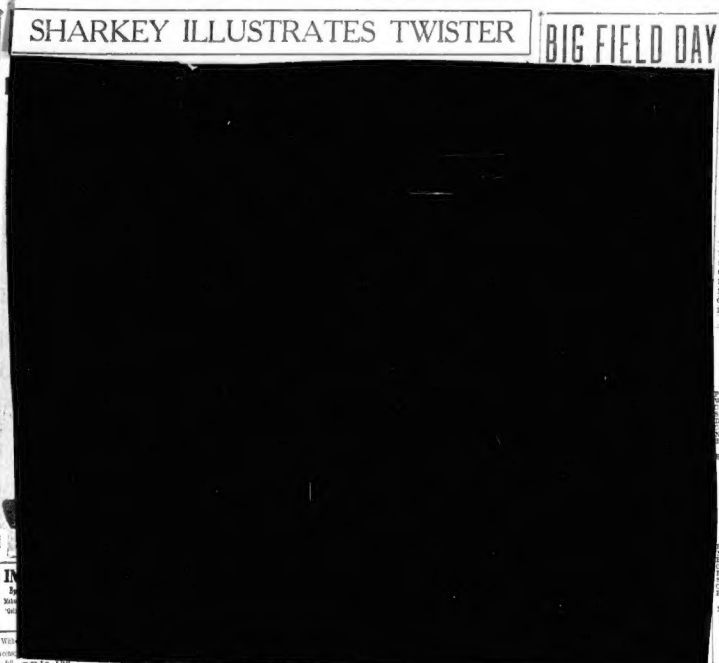
The Hersey-Wade match in the semi-final round will live long in the minds of those who saw that fight. The competitive record for the Country Club is 70 but, with only one putt, about a 4 footer on the 7th, conceded, Hersey shot a 69.

Although Ouimet was the favorite at the start of the championships, the golf that Hersey has shown has developed many debuting Thomases. Francis has not been forced to shoot his best golf, and he has been taking things easy.

If Win Hersey is going today as he has during the entire tourney, Francis cannot afford to leave any gates open, for the Princeton boy is as steady as the well-known Rock of Gibraltar and quick to take advantage of his opponent's mistakes.

Ouimet and Hersey started off for the first 18 holes of the finals this morning and the final round takes place this afternoon.

SHARKEY ILLUSTRATES TWISTER



The hungry man has the best chance to live to an old age.

Hungry athletes also are the ones who climb the heights that lead to pugilistic greatness.

I don't mean to intimate that a man must actually be starved before he can do anything of any consequence. I believe, though, that the man who does not over-eat has the best chance of living to a ripe old age.

The athlete who is not continually stuffing himself with food has the best chance to break world records.

The hungry man also is more aggressive. He is fired with ambition and filled with the determination to reach the top.

Jack Dempsey was a greater fighter when he knocked out Jess Willard six years ago than he is today. At that time he hadn't tasted luxury. He was without a great deal of money and eager to reach the top of his boxing division. He trained hard and faithfully.

You cannot expect Dempsey, the millionaire, to work as hard in the gym and on the road as he did when battering his way out front in the fistic world.

The man who has will power enough to continue his exercises and plain way of living after he has accumulated wealth will live to enjoy his fortune.

I am going to give you a twister of an exercise for today. Support yourself on one hand with one leg resting on the floor or ground. Elevate your other hand and leg. You can alternate to the other arm to the count of one, two. This exer-

Plays Golf in Gold Shoes and Rose Turban

New York, July 25 (A.P.)—A rose-turbaned potentate with gold sport shoes is going to chase a little white ball with various sticks on cross-country walks through fairways, jungle rough, desert-like sand traps and velvety greens from the Atlantic to the Pacific shores of these United States and back.

The Zamindar of Palayampatti and Paladanathan—take it from the passenger list—came in the Aquitania yesterday.

"You Americans come to India to shoot tigers in our jungles," he remarked. "I come to America to shoot golf on your courses."

CYCLE TRACK BOXING SHOW POSTPONED

On account of the failure of the Cycle A. C. to meet the requirements of the law, the first open air boxing show scheduled for the Revere Cycle Track Monday night has been postponed until the first week in August.

The Cycle A. C., a new organization which only recently procured a charter, was informed by the boxing commission that the law requires an interim of 10 days between the filing of the application and the issuing of a license. For this reason, the club has been prevented from running next Monday since the application was not made until yesterday.

Action will be taken by the commission on the application early next week, which will assure the fans of the show during the first week in August.

All the boxers will remain at work and the same card will be presented with George Cook of Australia meeting Joe Stoessel of New York in the main bout.

THE RED LACQUER CASE

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

Tensely Interesting Story of Love, Adventure and Intrigue

found a path, and she ran for her life. She saw vague shapes of trees, and a dense mass which she believed to be the box hedge by way of which Etta had brought her through the woodland belt to the lane. She was thankful that she had her coat on, and that both coat and skirt were of dark gray woven stuff that would neither rustle nor show up in the dark. As she passed the trees and came to the walk between the high bare hedges, she heard the noise of pursuit break out behind her, and, looking over her shoulder, saw the flash of an electric torch.

She Ran Her Fastest.

She gained the path, and after a yard or two it turned. The hedge would hide her now until they too reached the turn. She ran her fastest, trying to remember how the path went and whether there were turnings in it. She thought there were turnings, but was not sure. Oh, why hadn't she noticed more when she and Etta passed this way?

Ah, there was a turning now leading off to the right. She passed it by a yard or two, and then stopped short, shaken by a new terror. She could hear Lazare behind, running and calling, and in front, coming toward her down the narrow way between the hedges, someone else, walking quickly with the firm tread of an active man.

She stooped dead, spun round, ran back, and dived down the turning that led away to the right.

Major Armitage had driven through Ledlington at a scandalous pace just about the time that Inspector Williams was returning Lazare's polite good night. He whizzed past the inspector in a dark lane, without a guess at his identity, and with no more than the casual reflection that bicyclists were the curse of the country road.

At the four-cross way above Charnwood he halted to consider a plan of campaign. A deep inward conviction that Sally was in danger, and that he had turned his back on her, had sent him tearing back upon his tracks. He had thought only of getting back at any cost and in the shortest possible time. Now he realized that a plan was necessary, and set about making one.

Proved a Failure.

The front-door approach of Charnwood having been tried, and not having proved at all successful, some less obvious method commended itself to his mind. Upon three sides and part of the fourth side the house and garden were surrounded by a high wall. This he had noticed when he and the inspector searched the ground. But a belt of woodland ran along the back of the property, protected by a high thorn hedge which met the stone wall again lower down, and Bill distinctly remembered that at one point there was a gap in the hedge. He remembered it because he had stood there in the gap for a moment and looked down into the lane below. He did not know how narrowly he had missed seeing Le Noir's car cunningly drawn in under the trees a few yards up the lane, but he remembered the gap and the lane, and it occurred to him as it had occurred to Le Noir, that it would be a handy place to leave a car, and a convenient one at which to enter the Charnwood property without advertising his arrival.

He could then reconnoiter the neighborhood of the house and be guided by what he observed there. This settled, he drove slowly along the ridge above Charnwood looking for the lane which he reckoned should run into the main road somewhere within the next quarter of a mile. He had no difficulty in finding it, for, as he felt his way, looking all the while to the right, a bright glare pierced the trees, throwing the branches into strong relief, and with a grinding of gears a small car pushed up the last steep that merged the lane into the high road. It turned the corner, slid past him in a blinding dazzle, and was gone. M. Le Noir was on his way to town in a hurry.

Bill Armitage dropped down the lane until he sighted the gap in the Charnwood hedge, drew up under overhanging trees, and, shedding his driving coat and gloves, proceeded to climb the bank and to make an unlawful entry upon the property of Miss Emma Shaw.

First he climbed through a first story window. He landed in a small room. This led in to another room through glass French doors. Bill opened these carefully. No burglar could have done better. There was no one in the next room, however, and both doors leading to the house were locked. Bill climbed out again to find another way of entry.

Felt Exhilarated.

Bill felt exhilarated because the same instinct which had driven him back to this spot now told him that he had not come in vain. Sally seemed to be very close to him, and she seemed to be needing him, calling to him; trusting him. If, in these circumstances, a man in love is not moved to warm exhilaration he must indeed be slow and dull of spirit. Bill strolled through the woodland very much as if it belonged to him and not to old Miss Shaw at all. He did not at the moment care a fig for old Miss Shaw or for anyone but Sally and himself. He walked across the woodland and entered a gravelled path that ran between high box hedges.

When Sally ran, therefore, it was from Bill that she ran. A dozen more flying steps and she would have run right into his arms, but those steps were never taken. Instead she fled panic-stricken down the dark right-hand turning, and Bill, absorbed in his thoughts of her, never even knew that she had been within his reach. He strode on in the mood for adventure.

Lazare had not sighted Sally, but Sascha had, for, when Lazare rushed downstairs, Sascha darted to the window, appalled by the thought that Sally had fallen, and perhaps been terribly injured. As he stood peering out he saw a dark figure scramble up and run to the direction of the box hedge. Sally, then, was neither killed nor injured. And she was making for the gap in the hedge. Lazare would catch her. She had no chance. Sascha would certainly make for the gap since only by the gap could Sally possibly escape. Sally had no chance at all against Lazare. He would overtake her or cut her off. She would be brought back, and no, Sesona, would have to stand by and see her tortured or worse. He could not bear it. There were things that could not bear—one could not bear—

Hurried After Her.

He choked, and, turning after Lazare, stumbling on the stairs because his eyes were hot and misty with tears. The hall door stood wide open. At the foot of the stairs, Gregor, impassive and silent, with folded arms. Sascha pushed past him and ran out and round the house. He could hear Lazare ahead of him, making for the gap. He could see the beam of light from the torch in Lazare's hand. It shifted from side to side, swinging to and fro as he ran, lighting vividly now a bedraggled bough, now a bush full of berries, now a space of newly turned earth.

Sascha does Sally a good turn and turns the hounds from the scent in Monday's installment.

"MY dear, you should put him in a cage—if it's really true!" Can't you just hear the girls all saying that, and at the same time, watch the doubt and incredulity and surprise depicted on their pretty faces. Why? One of their set has just introduced her fiance, and blandly tells her friends that he says she is really and truly the very first girl he ever loved!

Can you blame them for not believing her, or rather him? Most every man tells a girl the same story. Some believe it, most don't! So there you are! But, personally, I think the happy fiance above really tells the truth, don't you? And, my dears, when you find such a "rara avis," get a beautiful cage and put him in it and keep him there, for they are very few and far between these days.

Philandering is made so easy in these modern times that it's hard for a mere man to resist; so when you meet someone who tells you that you're the very first girl he ever loved, and he means it—grab him quick! Such a love is too precious to lose. —POPINI.

DAILY SHORT STORY

By Jack Woodford

CHESTY WILLIAMS'S home reflected Chesty William no less than did his looking glass. It was luxuriously fitted out according to the last word in neo-movie renaissance to the last rococo word in modern overstuffedness.

Two large chairs were drawn up before the massive mahogany table at which Chesty sat in earnest converse with Maurice Hoyt, the reform district attorney whom he had sent for, for reasons of his own. Inwardly Chesty seethed, now, somehow that he had not sent for him. The man had an indefinite air of being "hard boiled," in spite of his well-groomed exterior. His inner aristocratic air also puzzled Chesty. He was, however, the only thing in town that hadn't so far bought, Chesty reflected and so, resolutely, he went shopping, though with certain misgivings.

The Old Bromide.

"I'm not going to spring that old bromide about every man and his price on you, Maurice; but—well—you talk . . ." Maurice was absently eyeing a decanter upon the table; he started as though called back from a reverie.

"That whiskey looks like some of the stuff my men hauled out of Dago Mike's place last Thursday," Chesty laughed fruitily.

"It is. I dropped over to—well never mind who's place, after the raid and he thought it advisable that I take some of the evidence home with me for further examination." Chesty examined some, and made appropriate whiskey swallowing noises—he always did this most convincingly.

"Have one?" he ended up generously, shoving the decanter at Maurice. Never was good whiskey gazed upon so coldly as now by Maurice.

"No thanks. I'm a law enforcer not a law breaker, as you seem to be—Mr. Mayor!" No paper could adequately carry the sarcasm which Maurice managed.

"Well, I get by with it, don't I?

The dear people think a lot more of me than they do of you, with all your virtue."

Maurice Smiled.

Maurice smiled formally. "Yes, I admit you've got the town sewed up tight. I've about despaired of bringing your wholesale malefic ences to the attention of the taxpayers.

Chesty moved impatiently and his chair, heavy as it was, creaked angrily. "Why try? Haven't I offered to be liberal?"

"I'd give ten thousand dollars of my own money to have the people of this city hear that remark," offered Maurice generously.

"Well, they won't hear it. This is some place where I'll guarantee you can't place any of your darned dictaphones.

"And, anyway, look at it from your point of view: What kind of a man is needed for Mayor of a town like this? Why! You need a man among men; one who can get things done. A leader who can push great projects through to completion. A man having the ability to head the civic government of a municipality such as this has a tremendous earning power. He could make a fortune in business for himself, or draw down a princely salary as the head of a large corporation. Do you think it's honorable, or just, or fair to give a man of his calibre a job that requires a high type of business ability and then expect him to do all this for the miserly salary the city pays its chief executive. Look what I've accomplished for this town."

Have Done a Lot

For the first time Maurice looked quite serious. "Yes, Chesty, I admit that you've done a lot. You could make yourself the greatest mayor Metropolis ever had—but you're crooked. You charged two prices for all those things; one for the actual cost of them to the city, and one for yourself and your crowd."

"Sure, I know that—but do you think I'm going to work for nothing. If the city won't pay me a salary commensurate with the needs of a man of my calibre and the station in life I must assume socially, what else am I going to do?" Maurice smiled and weighed his words carefully.

"You're right, in a certain sense. The fact that our present form of city government does not make allowance for salaries fitting the official's experience and skill and responsibilities is indeed a regrettable one. This state of affairs will, of course, have to be overcome before we can ever expect honest and efficient government. You can't get around it. Still, in another sense, you're dead wrong. Yes overlook the patriotic phase of the thing." Chesty laughed. He always did, privately, at this angle of the argument. But Maurice did not laugh. In fact, he looked rather sad.

"I'm sorry I had to ruin you, Chesty," he said after a moment's pause. "I think you are a man who could have gone far and accomplished much. But you've robbed the city government ragged and it was my duty."

"You talk as if you'd already got me," grinned Chesty. Maurice stood up, still eyeing him mercifully.

"Ring for your servant, Chesty," Chesty did so, but did not recognize the individual who opened the door. His puffy face turned whiter than his constituents had ever seen it turn as he whirled about upon Maurice for an explanation. Maurice spoke softly, even a little sorrowfully.

How He Did It.

"Pour yourself out another drink, Chesty, you'll need it before I get through. You'll observe, if you'll take the trouble to look, that there is a little block of wood beneath the hook on the telephone before us on the desk. When I came into the room tonight, while you weren't looking, I stuck it in there. I know no paper in town would publish dictaphone evidence I might get; so, when I came here tonight, I had a car full of my men follow.

"Shortly after you and I entered this room they overpowered your servants and locked them in the garage. My men have been in control of the whole house for the past thirty minutes. That phone wire out of the room was tapped and run directly to your own radio sending outfit. Your slightly interesting remarks have been broadcasted from your own station, all over the world.

"Thanks to the yawping you've done yourself during campaigns, over the set, I guess there are very few people in this vicinity who won't know who was talking. I'm sorry Chesty."

"So am I,F agreed Chesty, who had enough sailed away to be a good sport. "Damn sorry!"

ROMANTIC HUSBAND

A Sequel to "Ways of a Husband"

By Anne Lisle

"DON'T fail for buncombe, Matt. Go put your flowers in water, Mrs. H., I want to speak to Matt for a moment."

I found a big vase and carried the flowers into the bathroom. As I was arranging them, I realized for the first time during the odd interview I had been having that I was dressed in a kimono. I went into the connecting bedroom and hastily dressed. In the black satin I had worn the night before. A dignified costume gave me a sense of security to match my formal costume. I must have been out of the living room fifteen minutes.

When I returned there were a number of men romming around it or consulting each other in strident tones.

I recognized two newspaper men. One man was obviously a detective. Johnny Tremaine was striding up and down the room nervously, and seated calmly at the telephone was Virginia. There was nothing of "Jeanie" in her manner and pose. This was Mrs. Patrick Dalton, of Dreamwold—nee Virginia Harrison. All her dignity and poise and cold superiority were in evidence. I caught the last words she spoke into the telephone before she turned and discovered me.

". . . straight to the Manor, of course. Probably forgot or may never have had a cab's. You come, too. I'll see that she does."

"Jeanie!" I cried. "What are you doing here?"

"Where else would I be?" she asked curtly.

"But how did you know I was here?" I asked, going to her side and speaking very low.

"Pat telephoned. Get your things on and come home with me. You mustn't talk. You don't have to say a word. A wife can't be made to testify against her husband."

"But what I have to say is for Jim. It's absurd to caution me. There is nothing to be said against Jim. He has nothing to do with this—"

"Keep still and come with me," Virginia admonished.

"I can't. I must stay and try to help."

Breaking from Virginia's hold I ran over to Bert Frothingham and recalled to his mind the strange occurrence in his office a few nights before when he had thought he saw Brooke in the doorway and heard her scream as she was dragged away, and then five seconds later had been sure he saw her again in the window which she couldn't have reached in a full minute.

"Who dragged her away?" asked Bert coldly. "Jim. You can't make out a case, my dear, no matter how hard you try."

"I must stay and clear things up!" I cried, incensed by the idea that I could force these prejudiced people to listen to the truth.

"You'd better come away," whispered Jeanie.

She drew me out of the doorway and into the foyer.

To Be Continued Monday.

EARS ADD TO BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza

THE time has passed when women can afford to consider their ears negligible features so far as beauty is concerned.

This Summer, more insistently than ever, fashion decrees that the hair shall be drawn severely back, displaying the ears in all their pink and pearly daintiness. Bobbed heads, especially with the new "boy cut," may be bewitchingly pretty as well as comfortable, provided they reveal ears that are shapely, smooth and rosy.

Unfortunately, not all ears are lovely to look at. Some stand out conspicuously, while others are too small and attached too closely to the head.

The time to begin training ears is infancy and early childhood. So watch your baby's ears. In tying on his cap see that the ears are held comfortably close to the head, not pushed out of place. Never pull or box a child's ears or you may be responsible for its ugly ears and serious ear trouble later on.

Restoring ears to shapeliness once their beauty has been impaired through neglect in childhood is not easy. Plastic surgery has been known to help but should be resorted to only in extreme cases.

"Outstanding" ears may be trained to lie more flatly by tying a thin silk cap over them at night. Ears set too closely to the head may be improved in shape by gently pulling them outward each day. This should be done only by their owner, and the pulling should never be hard enough to be painful.

Ears are affected by the condition of the nose and throat. They may be cleared and kept more comfortable by gargling the throat in warm water every morning.

Be sure to include your ears in all the cleansings you give your face, whether of soap and water or cold cream. Remove cold cream gently, then vigorously pat your ear lobes with your favorite skin tonic, to give their lobes a rosy glow. Finally, dust them carefully with powder and place one drop of your favorite perfume back of each ear.

MRS. WILHELMY SAVED BY FRIEND

Doctor Advised Operation
Friend Said Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound First

St. Paul, Minn.—"I was all run-down from overwork and worry, had no appetite, could not sleep at night, and looked like a corpse. I have six children (five boys and one girl) and did not get any strength after my last baby was born. I was getting worse and thinner every day. The doctor said I had to go to the hospital, but this I could not do on account of my family. So I went to a friend of mine and told her what the doctor had told me and she said, 'How do as I tell you. Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I have done. It helped me.' So I started taking the Vegetable Compound and I noticed after the first few bottles that I felt considerably better. After taking 9 or 10 bottles I got over my fainting spells. Everybody who sees me now notices the great improvement in my health. I am gaining in weight and strength and am feeling fine. I eat well and sleep good nights."—Mrs. MARY WILHELMY, 809 Duke Street, St. Paul, Minnesota.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A girl friend and I have been great friends since childhood. I married first. She became engaged to a man, who, when he was introduced to me, at once called me by my first name. They married. Later he became a doctor.

Should I call him by his title, "Doctor" as long as he doesn't call me by my marriage name, for that is my title?

D. C. R.

I AM sure that this gentleman did not mean to be disrespectful, but since you and his fiancee were such very close friends, he probably heard a great deal about you and naturally by your first name. Evidently, too, he was a social unfortunate person, and thought that his fiancee's best friend would give him the honor of immediately starting an informal friendship. For you to call him "Doctor Hall" would seem for me to be very far fetched and not very cordial. With such a pleasant relationship as you all have, I suggest that you and your husband call both of these friends by their first names. And, by the way, the use of "Doctor"—without the last name—is never in good taste. Your doctor or any other doctor should not be addressed as "Good morning, Doctor," but as "Good morning, Doctor Hall."

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Would it be proper for a guest at a church wedding and wedding breakfast at a hotel to wear a light colored evening dress? Should gloves be worn with such a gown? Should a hat be worn at the breakfast?

S.

FOR a wedding breakfast and the following breakfast, it is not correct to wear an evening gown. The correct gown is the day-dress or suit, with gloves, and with a hat. In other words, the correct attire is formal day clothes.

WELL, sed Pa won he cairn hoam last nite, you have got to hand it to old Jim Brace for luck, sed Pa. My hat is off to him. & I shud of llissened to him long ago, sed Pa. wen he wanted me to buy sum stock in that mine, sed Pa.

What mine? sed Ma.

A gold mine, sed Pa. He wanted me to take a flyer with him 2 years ago, sed Pa. & I was looking out the window. Now the mine has turned out big & he is rich, sed Pa.

Why dident you tell me about it at that time? sed Ma. I wud of ad-vised you to take that flyer, sed Ma. The vary idee of you not telling me about it, sed Ma.

It is too lait now, sed Pa.

I know that, sed Ma, that is what maiks me out of pashunts with you. We cud of been rich now, sed Ma. The vary idee. Sumtimes I git terribul pro-voaked at you, sed Ma.

There is no use crying oaver spilled milk, sed Pa, or spilled beans.

No, sed Ma, but one can git vary tired of spilled milk & spilled beans, just the salm. The trubbel with husbands is that thay doant talk thare wifes into thare confydants enuff, sed Ma. Had you toald me & listened to me, sed Ma, we wud now be rich. But you nevver llisen to me, sed Ma.

Sumtimes I think that is about all I do, llisten to you, sed Pa.

Is that so? sed Ma. Is that so?

Yes, that is so, sed Pa. I am sorry now I made any menshun of that mine, sed Pa.

So am I, sed Ma. I will not be abel to sleap for a week, sed Ma.

What is the difrents, I sed, eeven if you and Pa aint rich, I sed, you have got enuff, & also you have got me, too, I sed.

What a blessing, Bobbie, sed Ma.

Yes, Bobbie, sed Pa, what a blessing.

I doant know if I am getting razed or not, but, I sed, but a lot of pairents wud be glad to have a smart kid like what I am, I sed, & I bet thay wuddent trade me for a gold mine, I sed.

Doant fool yureself, Bobbie, sed Pa. There are few things that the averidge mortil wud not trade for a gold mine, sed Pa. That is human nater.

Wud you & Ma trade me for a gold mine? I sed.

We mite, for a good gold mine, sed Pa.

Then, as soon as I am big enuff I will shake the dust of this here house from my shoes, I sed.

Then Pa and Ma laffed at me. In the first place, Bobbie, sed Ma, we wuddent trade you for a gold mine, & in the second place, nobody wud offer a gold mine for you in the first place, sed Ma.

YELLOW CAB'S MERGER MEET FOR PORTLAND

Indications are that the necessary two-thirds vote at the meeting of Yellow Cab Manufacturing Co. stockholders, August 18, at Portland, Me., for approval of the merger plan with the General Motors Corporation will not be lacking.

"We have every reason to believe that our stockholders are overwhelmingly in favor of the merger," said John Hertz, who is to become chairman of the board of directors of the new corporation whichis to be known as the Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing Co.

"The Yellow Cab Manufacturing Co. has established a reputation through many years of manufacturing as the builders of the highest class and biggest revenue producing taxicabs, coaches and light delivery wagons in the world. This at present comprehends a line of seven types of motor coaches and types of taxicabs and two types of driver-self car and several types of one-ton wagons. Through this merger we will now add to our present list a complete line of trucks varying from one to seven tons. Going into the building of heavy duty trucks does not mean any radical departure or drastic revision in our business, as our motor coaches are really a heavy duty vehicle."

While it is true that the merger will result in voting control passing into the hands of the General Motors Corporation, destiny of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Co. remains with Mr. Hertz and his associates. Active management of the new company will be almost entirely in the hands of the present officers and the present management will also have majority representation on the new board of directors to the extent of 13 out of 21 members, the other eight being directors of the General Motors Corporation.

—By B. C. Forbes—

Fort Worth, Tex., July 25.—You get so tired of hearing your own voice on a nation-wide tour of this kind that it was delightfully refreshing to find that Fort Worth has staged a gathering where all the talking was done by agricultural, business and banking leaders and all I had to do was to listen and absorb.

An old friend, Bill Summers, general manager of Armour & Co.'s huge local packing plant, was host, at the company's dining hall.

In this way it was possible to gather for readers of this column authoritative information covering every important line of activity.

Here are illuminating points from some of the brief, business-like statements:

Rudy Copeland of the Worth Mills, manufacturing cord tire fabric, stated that this enterprise has been highly successful ever since it opened last December, and indicated that notable expansion will be carried out as soon as proper financial and satisfactory arrangements can be made. Through getting choice cotton locally and through cheaper and better labor than is available in New England, the company can produce superior goods at costs well below those of Northern plants. To show how plentiful labor is, he mentioned that 3,005 applications for employment are on file.

L. W. Bevans of the Fair Department Store announced that the Federal Reserve Banking System surveys show that the local department stores did more business in the first six months of this year than in the first half of last year. He added that two new and exceptionally well developed department stores were certain to give impetus to local retail business, particularly in women's apparel, by reducing the number of women going to other centers to shop.

R. D. Halbower, manager of Montgomery, Ward & Co., who do a large retail as well as mail order business here, says the seasonal slump, always looked for, has not materialized this Summer, and analysis shows that all lines are doing well with the exception of farm implements and wire for fences. He attributes part of this gratifying result to vigorous newspaper advertising, and emphasizes particularly the productiveness of advertising in the Fort Worth Record.

L. C. Abbott of the Fort Worth Warehouse and Storage Company caused a laugh by stating that divorces were decreasing. He could tell this from the decrease in the quantity of household goods being placed in storage. On the other hand, the transfer business was more active than at any time since the oil boom of 1920. The customary Summer slump has not occurred this year.

• • •

Yes, Fort Worth is driving ahead. Other evidences of this will be presented in a later article.

ELECTRICAL OUTLOOK GOOD, SAYS WHITE

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

That section of New England commonly known as Greater Boston is not the only one in which the gas and electric companies are prospering. The Twin State Gas and Electric Company, with executive offices at 166 State street, Boston, is one of the chain in which Samuel Insull, the great Chicago magnate, is interested.

• • •

To get the viewpoint of an authority in a district not close to Boston I asked Leon C. White, manager of the Vermont decision of the Twin State concern, covering Bennington, Brattleboro and St. Johnsbury, what he thought of the outlook.

• • •

Mr. White said: "The outlook from every viewpoint for the remainder of the year is very encouraging. I believe that we will see an increase in our sales the coming six months due to improvements in the business of the community. There is in sight considerable new work in the way of additional new building jobs which will help along the entire local industry."

• • •

President George B. Leonard of International Combustion Engineering, just back from abroad, declares "the one bright spot in Europe is the electrical and combustion business. Our business is better in Europe than it has ever been. Our business in England, France, Germany, Italy and Spain is assuming very large proportions. In France we have taken, in the first six months of this year, nearly one and one-half times as much business as we did all last year and our French business last year amounted to about $1,000,000."

"In Germany we have just taken an order for $1,500,000," adds President Leonard, "and since April 1, inclusive of this order, our business totaled over $2,500,000. In Southern Spain we have contracted to build and operate a power plant. This contract will run well over $4,000,000. In Italy we have closed a contract for equipping the first of a series of stations with pulverized coal."

• • •

President H. A. Holder of the Reddy Corporation, 50 Congress street, Boston, tells me Prentice and Shepherd, 43 Broadway, New York, have prepared a timely and interesting circular on the tire industry.

• • •

While recognizing the inventory profits which are in sight for the tire companies, because of increased raw rubber prices, they consider these temporary and of very much less importance than the general conditions surrounding the industry which seem to be established on much sounder lines than have been present the last few years.

• • •

They have selected Fisk Rubber for special study and comment, basing their recommendations of its securities upon its management, distribution facilities and the size and completeness of its manufacturing facilities, both for its yarns and fabrics as well as for tires themselves. They show that with its present and expected volume of business only ordinary percentage of manufacturing profit is necessary to give large earnings for its common stock which, with a funding of back preferred dividends which they think logical to expect, would be in sight of regular dividends.

Although Akron is commonly regarded as the home of the rubber industry, it has only its largest tire and rubber companies in this country is a New England corporation, incorporated in Massachusetts, and very much backed by New England capital. This is the Fisk Rubber Company, which began in 1898, when Moyer W. Fisk and Harry C. Fisk purchased a running plant at Chicopee Falls. Harry T. Dunn became associated with them as sales manager in the same year, and upon the death of the elder Mr. Fisk in 1901 he became president.

NEW HAVEN HAS BIG SURPLUS

New Haven Railroad reports for June surplus after charges of $652,-618, comparing with surplus after charges of $344,564 in May, 1925, and surplus of $457,223 in June, 1924.

For the six months ended June 30, 1925, there was surplus after charges of $2,663,575 against surplus of $872,514 in the first six months of 1924.

INSULL NAMED IN MERGER RUMORS

Sudden jump in the market for Blackstone Valley Gas & Electric Company capital stock has started another crop of merger rumors in which the name of Samuel Insull figures prominently. The management of the company, however, denies any such negotiations are in progress.

The stock had as a matter of fact been something of a dormant issue in the excited public utility market of the past few months and the recent spurt from 83 to a recent high of 99 in over-the-counter transactions has probably done no more than bring it into line with other sound issues. From the peak level the stock softened slightly to current levels around 93.

The company is under Boston management and operates in the highly developed industrial area of northern Rhode Island, serving Pawtucket and Woonsocket as well as other communities in the Blackstone Valley. Capitalization consists of $9,954,000 funded debt, $2,284,200 preferred stock of the company and a subsidiary and 6,467,250 common stock of $50 par value. Dividends on the latter issue are being paid at the rate of 10 per cent, or $5 per annum.
